Steel Above 140 Purifying Her David Danced It, Perhaps Mysterious Money

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1926, Star Publishing Co.

UNITED STATES STEEL crossed 140 yesterday, highest price. That started speculative auction that will drag in little lambs all over the country. Stocks were up, bonds also, bears were down.

Individual owners of United States Steel common number 93,671, and all wish somebody would answer these questions:

What will "Steel" do with its four or five hundred millions or more of accumulated cash?

Will it pay out accumulated reserves and leave itself naked to the winds and waves? Or will it issue a stock bonus? If so, what dividend will that new stock pay?

Answer those questions and you can become rich in the short time needed to call up your broker. Don't gamble!

FLO ZIEGFELD, of many "Follies," does not mean to have the wicked tide of nude stage indecency roll over him. Having devoted his life to "glorifying American girls," he now announces his intention to "purify the American stage, and the American girl with it." He advertises a show in which the most beautiful girls ever seen on earth are "properly clad." Those

ASSAILS ROYALTY IN COMMONS

London, June 30 (A.P.).—A sensation was caused in the House of Commons this afternoon when George Buchanan, Laborite who professes republicanism, avowed he had "no respect and nothing but contempt for royalty." It was a tense moment and there were loud protests from the Conservatives. Under the House rules, the King's name must not be brought into debate.

FORMER HUB REALTY WOMAN ARRESTED

PLOT OF BREWERS IN 40 STATES TO TURN U.S. WET IS UNDER PROBE

Washington, June 30 (I.N.S.).—A searching inquiry into charges that a clique of brewers poured a stream of gold into Pennsylvania's recent $3,000,000 Republican Senatorial primary was initiated today by the Senate Slush Fund Committee.

It is the first step in an effort to learn whether a nation-wide wet combine has been formed to influence American elections.

The committee summoned Capt. William H. Stayton, head of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, as the first witness in its wet inquiry, which was prompted by Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League, who charged at a secret session of the committee that Pennsylvania brewers had raised a slush fund to "buy" the Republican senatorial nomination for Representative Vare.

There were rumors today that Wheeler turned over to the committee a series of letters sent out by the Anti-Prohibition Association, urging contributions to a national wet election fund, which would be used in seeking to elect a wet Congress.

The letters were said to give evidence of a national organization, with local agencies in from thirty to forty States.

The committee also planned a further investigation of the Anti-Saloon League's political activities.

Boston's 'Jerry' Smith Leads as 'No Pay' Man

Jeremiah Smith, Jr., of Boston, who presented his $100,000 salary for two years' work as league supervisor of Hungary's finances, to the Hungarian people, has had a notable career, enjoying an enviable reputation in the biggest banking circles of the world.

"Give it to charity; your poor people need it more than I do," Mr. Smith told Premier Count Bethlen. "The only compensation I desire for my work is the appreciation and friendship of the Hungarian people."

Smith refused to be compensated for his expenses and spurned a decoration.

A member of the law firm of Herrick, Smith, Donald & Farley of No. 84 State street, with a home at No. 4 Berkeley street, Cambridge, he has long been prominent in international affairs.

Mr. Smith was born fifty-six years ago at Dover, N. H., graduated from Exeter Academy in 1888, from Harvard in 1892, and from Harvard Law School three years later. His father, Jeremiah Smith, was for twenty years a professor in Harvard Law School and his grandfather was Chief Justice of New Hampshire and for a short term Governor of that State.

He played an important legal role in the organization of the Chinese Consortium, which was an international financial arrangement of great benefit to China. On a more recent occasion Smith assisted in the adjustment of the Mexican national debt, acting as associate counsel to a committee of American bankers.

Europe came to know him more intimately because of his work in 1915 as a member of the War Relief Commission of the Rockefeller Foundation. Later he occupied an important post under General Charles G. Dawes, then general purchasing agent for the American Expeditionary Forces.

BRIDE-TO-BE LOVES KILLER MORE SINCE CRIME; BAIL DENIED

Lowell, June 30.—"I love him more than life," declared Katherine P. McGrath, twenty-two, of Pleasant street, today, as she buried her hopes of happiness in the little chest in which she tenderly replaced the dress she was to have worn today to become the bride of Donald M. Ferguson, nineteen, confessed murderer of Mrs. Esther A. Frost. This was to have been their wedding day.

While she tore down the decorations that had bedecked her home for the happy event, the prospective bridegroom stood before a judge in district court to answer to a charge of murder, which, according to his confession to police, he committed to get money for thte wedding.

SEIZE HOTEL GUEST AS ROBBER OF BANK

A chase that led private detectives across the country ended today in Salem when William J. Germain, alias Powell and Felton, was held as one of the six men who in 1925 held up the American Bank of DeSoto, Mont., and took $10,700 at gun point.

Germain, who is 20, was known as a dapper salesman in Salem, and drove a motor car. His mother, according to police, lives in the West End, Boston. Detectives of the William J. Burns international agency, who had trailed Germain across the continent questioned him today at the Salem police headquarters.

Germain was held in $25,000 bail when arraigned today in first district court, Salem. He had previously been charged with the theft of automobile tires and the case continued to July 3.

Five of the men who participated in the De Soto bank robbery, were captured, according to detectives, by a posse of cowboys and Indians.

Sheriff Raymond Williams of Hillsboro, Mont., notified police he is on his way East to get Germain.

A navy cap in which the name "Germain" was written furnished the first clue to identification. Detectives who communicated with Washington learned Germain had served in the coast guard and later enlisted in the army from Salem.

An insurance policy which detectives unearthed names Germain's mother as beneficiary.

WAREHOUSE SWEPT BY ROSLINDALE FIRE

Forty thousand dollars' worth of pumps used in connection with airplane motors, owned by the Kenny Manufacturing Company of Roslindale, were damage in a fire that swept th two-story warehouse at the corner of Plainfield and Williams street, Jamaica Plain, today.

The entire warehouse, a wooden building, was like a tinder box when a blaze started at noon. A passerby turned in the alarm, and upon the arrival of the apprtus Chief Sennott sent out a second alarm.

In the meanwhile sparks from the blazing building poured over the adjoining district, threatening a number of tenement houses nearby.

A three-story brick building adjacent to the burning warehouse was in danger. This building also contained a large amount of stored airplane aparatus.

GOVERNOR IS COMING ON AIR MAIL TO BREAKFAST

With the arrival of the first air mail-carrying' plane at 8:50 daylight time tomorrow morning, Boston will be linked for the first time with New York and the Pacific Coast by airplane postal service.

The plane's arrival at the Boston airport with Governor John H. Trumbull of Connecticut, chairman of the board of directors of the Colonial Air Transport, Inc., carriers of the Boston-New York air mail, is the first event in an elaborate program of celebration.

At 9:20 breakfast will be served to the air mail flyers at the Algonquin Club, with W. Irving Bullard, president of the Colonial Air Transport, Inc., and vice-president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, as host.

An official call on Mayor Nichols will be made about 11:30 and at 12:30 the air mail luncheon of the Boston Chamber of Commerce will be served.

The guests will include the air mail flyers, Mayor Nichols, Professor E. P. Warner, Frederick S. Snyder, Howard W. Burge, postmaster Roland L. Baker, with W. Irving Bullard as toastmaster. The speeches will be broadcast over WEEI.

"Open house" will be the order of the day at the Airport, where everyone who cares to witness the depart-

38 KILLED, 41 HURT WHEN 'DUD' BLOWS UP

Kowe, Volhynia, Poland, June 30 (A.P.).—Thirty-eight soldiers, including two officers, were killed and 41 injured when a shrapnel shell, presumably left over from the great war, exploded here today.

The accident occurred while a company of the 35th Regiment of Infantry was practicing on a field and marched over an 18-centimeter shrapnel shell.

PAIR EXTORT $20,000 FROM MILLIONAIRE

New York, June 30 (I.N.S.).—Mrs. Gertrude Fosnaugh, who was married only a month ago in Hollywood, Cal., was arrested with her husband, Bernard, today and admitted, police said, she had extorted $20,000 within a year from Frederick R. Hazard, millionaire head of a tax accountant firm.

The young woman was arrested in her hotel after her husband had been captured in Grand Central Station where it was said he had an appointment to receive $5,000 from the broker. He collapsed at police headquarters.

"Yes, I sent the letters," Mrs. Fosnaugh is quoted by police as saying. I have got $20,000 so far from Mr. Hazard, but it was at my husband's suggestion. I was employed by Mr. Hazard in 1925 as a typist. Later we looked up his rating and found he had inherited several million dollars."

The police hope to obtain several letters and telegrams from the Fosnaughs to Hazardwich are said to demand money and threaten "exposure."

PONZI PINS HOPES ON 'MA' FERGUSON

While three State officials are enroute for Houston, Texas, today with extradition papers for his return here, Charles Ponzi, dapper Italian foreign coupon wizard, pins his faith in the womanly sympathy of Governor Miriam Ferguson to keep him out of a Massachusetts prison.

Ponzi, in a phone conversation before Inspector John F. Mitchell, Assistant Attorney General Alfred B. Shrigley and Inspector Harry Pierce left, to bring him back, said he would fight to the end.

Ponzi is perfectly willing to leave the country now, he says, if he is allowed to do so. Exile to Italy is preferable to a prison term in Boston.

At first the much wanted wizard offered to return to Boston if allowed to go in custody of a Texas deputy sheriff. Once outside Texas the sheriff would have no authority to hold Ponzi and he could have defied him. This fact was realized by Inspector Mitchell and in his talk

GIRL STICKS BY WIDOW-KILLER

Ferguson pleaded not guilty and was held for a continuance of the case, without bail, to July 7.

PLEDGES LOVE ANEW.

Stunned by the sudden quirk of fate that had dashed her hopes on the very eve of the intended marriage, Miss McGrath took down the decorations with trembling hands, and pledged anew her love and faith in Donald Ferguson.

Tearfully Miss McGrath recounted the romance, so rudely shattered at the moment of culmination.

"I was just as much in love with him right now," she sobbed, "as I was when we plighted our troth.

"He is not a murderer. There was no murder in his heart. hTe trouble was that he did not want to hold up the wedding, because he didn't have any money.

If he had only let me know that he was without funds, I had some saved up and would gladly have given it to him.

SEES HIM IN JAIL.

"Why, even yesterday, after that terrible thing happened, he sent his chum to me and asked me to come to him.

"I did, and he cried his eyes out because he said he hadn't received a large sum of money which he had expected from a friend.

"So I gladly gave him money for clothes for the wedding. I cannot understand his being so cool yesterday while I was with him shopping, after the things he did.

CAN'T FORGET HIM.

"If I had been with him that night it wouldn't have happened. If he only had come and told me.

"If we had been married I would have been a murderer's wife, but I would have loved him just the same. "He told me when I visited him in his cell last night, to forget him. But how can I? For nine months we planned this day.

"And it has been transformed from a day of gladness to sadness. If a loving soul, tried and true, can do anything for a sweetheart, I will bend every energy to help him."

Time and again she punctuated her lamentation with "Poor, Poor Don," or again with "Oh, my God," as her grief overcame her.

"I am going to move to Boston," she continued, "and get a job near the Cambridge jail, so that I can visit Don every day and take him food.

Confession of Lowell Boy Murderer

Lowell, June 30.—Donald M. Ferguson, nineteen-yearold youth accused of the murder of Mrs. Esther A. Frost, aged storekeeper, in a confession said to have been made to Superintendent of Police Hugh Downey, described the killing as follows:

"What is your name?" "Donald Ferguson."

"You are how old?" "Nineteen years old."

"You live where?" "800 Bridge street."

"He has been warned of his rights?" (Answer by officer.) "He has been told anything he said might be used against him."

"What is the story of your going into that store last night?" "I don't know why I did it; I could not have been in my right mind."

"How did you get in?" "Went in through the door."

"You fastened that door after you went in?" "I bolted it."

"You saw the lady there—Mrs. Frost?" "Yes, sir."

"What did you do?" "I did just what you found there this morning."

"Tell just what you did; you don't know what we found there?"

"You took a milk bottle?" "All I remember is hitting her and she fell down."

SHE WAS STANDING.

"What did you hit her with?" "A milk bottle."

"Did you buy the milk?" "I found it on the counter."

"Where was she when you struck her?" "Right there. Just a few feet."

"Was she sitting in a chair?" "No, sir. She was standing kind of sideways."

"She fell down? "Yes, sir, she fell down."

"What did you do then after she fell down?" "I just put things around her head and took the money and went out."

"Did you tear her apron?" "Yes, sir, that was torn in the take."

"You had a struggle?" "No, just a little struggle."

"Did you try to choke her at any time?" "I hit her and she fell down."

"Did you stuff any cotton into her mouth in the struggle?" "Some of it might have went into her mouth in the struggle. I did not deliberately put it in."

TOOK ONLY MONEY.

"What time was it when you went there?" "I don't know. Between 11 and half past."

"Which way did you go out?" "The back door."

"What was the denomination of the money?" "One dollar bill and the rest was all change."

"You went up there for the purpose of getting some money?" "I don't now how I ever did it."

"You were going to get married, weren't you?" "Yes, sir."

"You wanted to get some more?" "Yes, sir."

"That was the object?" "That is the way it came into my head."

"You thought that was a good chance by hitting the old lady over the head?" "There was no answer to this question."

"Now, when you went in did you speak to her at all?" "No, she was sideways, and the position she was in you can't see any one come in."

"Did she speak or yell?" "She made an outcry but did not recognize me."

SAME ROUTE.

"She knew you?" "She knew me well, yes, sir."

"Were you on that street around 11 o'clock?" "Not after I came out of the store."

"Weren't you walking up and down there." "No, I went on First street and went into the store; came out and went up Second street."

"You and Wilson came out of Wilson's house at what time?" "Five minutes of 10."

"And then went down to your house?" "I went the same route I told you. Then I went out and you know what happened there."

"You and Wilson went down to your house?" "Yes, sir; I will admit that."

"Then after you were in the house you went out and left Wilson there?" "Yes, sir."

"Then you went back to Wilson?" "Went back to my house."

"Where Wilson was?" "Yes, sir."

"And Wilson stayed all night?" "Yes, sir; it is not the first time he has been there."

"You did not tell Wilson anything about it?" "No, he did not know anything about it."

"You did not tell Wilson you were with your girl?" "I said, 'I am going out.'"

NOT WITH GIRL.

"When you came back you told him?" "No, I said I had been talking to a couple of fellows I knew."

"That is, when you went back and Mr. Wilson asked where you were, you said you were with your girl?" "She will tell you that I was not with her."

"You could have told him? You told that to Mr. Wilson?" "I did not tell Mr. Wilson. No, sir."

"When you went home last night you washed the blood out of your shirt?" "There was a little blood on the cuff."

"And you washed the blood out of your pants?" "I pressed my pants."

"Didn't you wash the blood off?" "Just put the wet rag on when I pressed them."

"Is that the coat you wore?" "Yes, sir."

"You washed the cuffs of your shirt, did you?" "Yes, sir."

"Is that all you have to say?" "That is all I have to say."

"Is there anything else? The object was that you wanted to get some money?" "Yes, sir."

"You wanted to get who over money the old lady had? When did you make up your mind to go there?" "When I passed the store I happened to think of it."

TWO NIGHTS BEFORE.

"What time was that?" "A couple of nights ago."

"You made up your mind then, did you, you would do the job sometime?" "It just came into my head like that."

"Did you make any demand on her for money?" "No, never spoke to her. The position she was in she could not see anybody come in."

"You went in and bolted the door and knocked her down with a bottle?" "Yes, sir."

"Did you break the bottle when you hit her?" "Broke it on the side of the wall."

"That is true what you say now?" "Yes, sir."

TWO ACCIDENTS AT SAME SPOT

Douglas Edwards, eight, and Alexander McKenzie, Jr., were slightly injured when the automobile of Alexander W. McKenzie of Engine 8, fire department, and that of Joseph Shine, No. 10 Lake street, Winchester, crashed at Washington and Swanton streets, Winchester Highlands.

The McKenzie machine was tipped over to one side. Just a few hours earlier there was another accident at the same spot, but no one was injured. Physicians treated the two boys, and they were then taken home.

CHICAGO ENGINEERS STRIKE FOR MORE PAY

Chicago, June 30 (I.N.S.).—Six hundred technical engineers employed by the city of Chicago failed to report for work this morning as a result of the City Council Finance Committee's refusal to grant them an increase in pay.

The strike has threatened for weeks. Mayor Dever and several aldermen are said to have favored the wage boost, but the guardians of the city's finances are quoted as saying:

"We can't spend money we haven't got."

COOLIDGE HAS PAID BAY STATE POLL TAX

Northampton, June 30 (A.P.).—Among the citizens of Northampton who have paid their poll taxes long in advance of July 1 and will not receive a summons to settle up, at extra cost, is Calvin Coolidge, who is temporarily living in Washington, where he has a position, but keeps his residence in this city, where he votes from time to time.

HUB'S AIR MAIL DUE AT 8:50

ure of the first planes will be allowed to enter the field.

The service will be inaugurated by the arrival of a plane loaded with mail, scheduled to reach here at 8:50 in the morning. The return trip will be started at six o'clock in the evening when possibly two machines will mount the skies for the first aerial Boston-New York post airway.

The first machine in will be flown by Pilot H. R. Wells of the Colonial Air Transport, Inc., carrying the mail under contract, accompanied by Governor John H. Trumbull of Connecticut, one of the company's directors. Governor Trumbull will climb aboard at Hartford, Ct., where the plane will stop to drop off mail.

NOON LUNCHEON.

At noon the pilot and officials of the airplane company will attend a luncheon at the Boston Chamber of Commerce where addresses will be given by Mayor Nichols and Wellington Wells, president of the Senate.

The festivities marking the first plane send-off will be opened at 4:45 p. m., when a fleet of airplanes will fly about the port and over the city. Another fleet will fly from the naval airplane base at Squantum, staying in the air for half an hour.

All day tomorrow a sub-postal station will be in operation at the airport for the convenience of the visitors. It will accept mail for transport on the mail planes.

MISS COLE WEDS T. F. GEARY, JR.

Miss Eileen F. Cole, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. V. Cole of No. 15 Lonsdale street, Dorchester, was married today to Thomas Francis Geary, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Geary of No. 5 Weyanoge street, Dorchester, at a nuptial mass at St. Mark's Church, Dorchester.

An unusual feature was the participation in the ceremonies of six priests, three of them uncles of the groom. Rev. Frank Connors, C. M., a member of, the faculty at St. John's College, Brooklyn, N. Y., was the celebrant of the mass. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. George Connors, S. J., of the faculty at Holy Cross College, Worcester, while Rev. Henry Connors, C. M., of St. Vincent's Mission House, Springfield, gave the young couple a special blessing. These three clergymen are uncles of Mr. Geary.

Mrs. Cleary was attended by her sister, Miss Doris Cole, as bridesmaid, while Henry J. Geary, brother of the groom, was best man. Brothers of the bride and groom were ushers. Maxwell T. Cole was head usher, assisted by A. Clifford Cole, George Geary and Joseph Duvis. The Misses Louise Cole and Mary Wheeler were flower girls. Joseph Geary and George Rollins, brother and cousin of the groom, served the mass.

Seated within the sanctuary were the Rev. Michael Dunnahay of St. Peter's Church, Dorchester, cousin of the groom; Rev. Fathers Toohig and Kane of St. Mark's parish and the Rev. Matthew Cunningham, O. S. A., Staten Island, N. Y.

After a honeymoon trip to New York, Philadelphia and Atlantic City, Mr. and Mrs. Geary will reside at 109 Rosemont road, Dorchester. Mrs. Geary was formerly with the N. E. Telephone & Telegraph Company. Mr. Geary is associated with the mayflower Oil Company as a traffic manager.

SUBMIT BIDS TO BUILD TWENTY NAVAL PLANES

Washington, June 30. (A.P.).—The Curtiss Aeroplane Motor Company and the Chance Vought Corporation, both of Long Island, N. Y., have submitted proposals for construction of twenty combined pursuit and spotting planes which the navy proposes to use with the fleet.

The Vought Corporation's bids ranged from $10,400 to $10,640 for each plane, and those of the Curtiss Company were between $8,946 and $9,196. Awards will be made after the bids have been examined.

PONZI FIGHTS IN TEXAS

with Ponzi over the long distance phone made it plain that the only way he can come back to this city is in custody of Massachusetts men and treated without any special courtesies.

PLANNING FIGHT.

Already Ponzi is forming the basis for his fight against return to Boston and laying the ground work for sympathy by denouncing his prosecutign as persecution and his trial as injustice.

He expressed regret that he had "played square" and turned over $10,000,000 which he once had in his hands and could have kept, he said.

Although Ponzi maintained he only had $25 in his pocket when he embarked on the Italian steamship Sic Vos Non Vobis at Tampa, Fla., when he was brought into Houston his first request of Sheriff T. A. Binford for permission to hire a guard and sleep in a down-town hotel. This was denied and he was put in the county jail.

In trying to flee the country, Ponzi disguised himself by shaving his head, growing a mustache and Valentino side whiskers. He added a pair of glasses to complete the transformation, but Deputy Sheriff Bert Lacy's keen eye penetrated the makeup.

UNWILLING TO RETURN.

He freely admitted that he did not want to come back to Boston for another term in prison. To clear his tracks he even dispatched some clothing to friends at Jacksonville with instructions to heap them on the beach, with a note he wrote to his wife and mother, faking suicide.

Before the Massachusetts officers reach Houston, Ponzi's line of campaign will be found and his first step will be taken to forestall extradition. Probably a writ of habeas corpus will be sued out in court as one of the first steps, but the real fight will come when the Massachusetts papers are presented to Governor Ferguson to be honored.

It is here that Ponzi will make his big play and stage his fight along sympathetic lines, counting heavily on the Governor's refusal once before to honor papers signed by a Bay State Governor for a return of a wife deserter.

Charge Father Killed Girl to Be Master of His Home

'TRUNKS' THE RAGE

ASKS FOR MURDER TRIAL

Gaines Says He Wants to Prove Innocence Quickly; Girl From Lynnfield, Mass.

Seattle, Wash., June 30 (A. P.).—Defense counsel today prepared to attack the chain of evidence which led to the arrest of Wallace G. Gaines, disabled war veteran, accused of the murder of his 22-year-old daughter, Sylvia.

Gaines' arrest followed nearly two weeks of investigation, in the course of which he requested Prosecutor Ewing D. Colvin to prefer a charge of murder against him that he might have an early opportunity to prove his innocence.

Miss Gaines was found strangled and beaten to death on the shore of a lake two miles from her father's home on the night of June 18. Physicians said she had previously been attacked. She had come to live with her father last September from the home of her mother, Mrs. H. E. Maynard of Lynnfield, Mass., who separated from Gaines sixteen years ago.

ORDERED ARREST.

Prosecutor Colvin ordered the arrest after Louis Stern, a friend of Gaines, testified at a coroner's inquest that Gaines had intimated killing his daughter so that he would be "master in his own house." A detective also testified that he found blood stains on Gaines' clothing.

Stern testified that Gaines came to his house the night of the slaying and asked for a drink, saying: "If you'd been through what I went through just now, you'd want a drink, too."

Gaines, according to Stern, said: "You remember I always told you I'd be master in my own house. That if anyone tried to tell me what to do or where and when to go or come, I'd kill 'em.

"Gaines then threw his arms about me and with tears in his eyes exclaimed: 'That's just what happened.'"

Gaines admitted a quarrel with his daughter on the night of the slaying, but insisted it was of a minor nature.

TO CONTINUE SEARCH.

While county authorities appeared to be satisfied they had solved the slaying, Captain Charles Tennant, chief of detectives, said he was continuing the search "for the fiend who killed Sylvia Gaines."

Gaines' present wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Gaines, whom he married five years ago, told authorities she had utmost faith in his innocence. William H. Gaines, chairman of county commissioner, and Gaines' brother, also said he was convinced the wrong man was under arrest.

IRISH SOLDIERS WILL HELP COLLECT TAXES

Dublin, June 30 (A.P.).—Soldiers are to help local authorities collect taxes in certain Irish districts. Decision to this effect has been brought about by the situation in islands off the Irish west coast, where residents have not paid taxes for years.

'COOLIDGE CONGRESS' BLOWS UP

Emphatic Defeat of Farm Bill Shows G. O. P. Split Wide Open

Washington, June 30 (I.N.S.)—The sixty-ninth, or "Coolidge Congress," as it was called when it went into power on the crest of the great Republican landslide of 1924, prepared today to go home—bearing but little resemblance to the closely knit, harmonious body that took its seat in December.

Where six months ago all save a handful of the Republican majority were as regular as clockwork in their support of the White House, today there is a split of such magnitude that Mr. Coolidge could command in the Senate only twenty-three Republican votes on a controversial matter on which he had asked for solid support.

CRUSHING DEFEAT.

The Senate's crushing defeat of the Fess farm relief bill indorsed by the President and his Cabinet, was the crowning blow at Republican solidarity this session.

A spectacle of a Republican Congress on the eve of an election that is all-important to the party, repudiating the leadership of a Republican President is almost without parallel in recent political history, and it emphasized as nothing else could the width of the chasm that yawns between the Coolidge and anti-Coolidge wings of the party.

FIRST DECISIVE ISSUE.

To still further emphasize the recalcitrancy of the Senate Republicans against the White House, the Fess Bill was the first controversial legislation that President Coolidge has endorsed and made an issue of this session.

Ordinarily, with two dozen Republican Senators facing re-election, the White House would have only to lightly wield the party whip to obtain regularity, but yesterday the party whip was cracked manacingly —and ignored.

Adjournment by Saturday was the program today. Only the Dill radio bill and the second deficiency bill remained on the Congressional calendar. A fight will no made by some factions to enact the rivers and harbors bill, but it apparently is doomed.

KEMAL WON'T TOLERATE CRITICISM BY WOMEN

Constantinople, June 30 (A.P.).—Mustapha Kemal Pasha, the Turkish dictator, has let it be known that he will not tolerate unlicensed criticism of his religious and dress reforms by women. He has given orders that all women who indulge publicly in such criticisms shall be arrested.

Under the new order a group of Moslem women in Constantinople have been fined $10 each because they declared the Ghazi's condemnation of the wearing of the veil by Turkish women and his approval of short skirts not only offended good taste, but were in contravention of the tenets of the sacred Koran.

APPROVE NEW BATHING SUITS

The form-revealing bathing suit for the fairer sex is vindicated at Boston beaches. One-piece suits and the popular new "trunk" suits, with white vests tucked inside dark trunks, will be all the rage this Summer.

Coney Island may object to mermaids disporting their charms in masculine uniform but if the suits are at all "reasonably modest," Revere Beach will tolerate them.

At Nantasket Beach, girls will have their choice of any sort of suit, providing it's not too shocking, and Metropolitan cops will nod in approval.

Girls may disport to their heart's glee at Revere but when walking on the boulevard they must be carefully covered from shoulder to knee. Rubber coats with cape effect are favored for the promenade.

Bonfire Will Start Salem's Big Time

One of the greatest demonstrations in Salem will begin at midnight, July 4, when a huge bonfire on Gallows Hill will blaze to surrounding cities and towns that Salem has begun celebration of the 300th anniversary of its settling.

On the spot where old women were hanged as witches, a program replete with activities of every variety will be held, culminating in a fireman's muster and fireworks display.

Religious services, commemorating the anniversary with prayer, are scheduled Sunday. An outdoor service of song takes place at noon. A massed band concert will be given afternoon and evening on Salem Common.

The City Government committee of the Tercentenary celebration has completed plans for an elaborate parade in which every organization, fraternal and otherwise, in the city will participate. On Monday morning a grotesque parade will be staged.

On Tuesday, fifteen on more of the old Colonial mansions will be thrown open to the public. A program of athletic events will also be put on at Bertram Field.

The military, social trade and civic parade will be Wednesday. More than 10,000 are scheduled to participate. The official Tercentenary dinner will be in the evening at the State armory. Vice-President Charles G. Dawes will be the guest of honor.

Family reunions and welcome home exercises will take place Thursday morning. Historic exercises will take place in the evening at Ahles Memorial Hall. On Friday comes the floral and historic parade.

Brakeman Crushed to Death

Fitchburg, June 30.—Luther A. Jackson, 58, of No. 123 Cedar street, was almost instantly killed when he was crushed between two cars near the station of the Boston & Maine Railroad here.

NEVADA G. O. P. AGAINST COURT

San Francisco, June 30 (Universal) —The Republicans in State convention in Nevada have gone on record against the World Court.

The convention condemned the Court and set forth in definite language its determined opposition and expressed in its resolution the opinion that action by the League of Nations' secretary in its inquiry concerning the United States' position definitely removes all doubt as to the linking of the World Court with the League.

TAGGART IN CHICAGO FOR PARTY CONFERENCE

Chicago, June 30.—Tom Taggart, veteran Hoosier politician, arrived here to discuss politics with Democratic leaders of the city. Mr. Taggart seemed well pleased with the progress that has been shown in the massing of Democratic political lines and followers.

RAIDERS SEIZE BIGGEST STILL

Chicago, June 30 (I.N.S.).—Sufficient alcohol for 8,640,000 gin rickies or "orange blossoms" every seven days.

That was the weekly output of a gigantic still, today in the possession of Prohibition Director E. C. Yellowley. Housed in a $30,000 building, with equipment valued at $200,000, it is said to be the country's largest wildcat distillery seized since the advent of prohibition.

Enforcement Chief R. O. Merrick, who is good at figures, reduced the 18,000 gallon weekly output of 151 proof alcohol to individual drinks. He estimated that if the "alky" was made into orange blossom highballs, 720,000 dozen oranges would be required.

STATE AND CITIES IN PLAGUE FIGHT

School Children and Adults at Salem, Lynn, Peabody, Springfield Stricken

Alarmed at the epidemic of scarlet fever in Weymouth and Salem, which developed among those who attended high school spreads in those two places, organizations in surrounding towns and cities hastily are cancelling celebrations and dinners that had been planned.

One of the first cancellations announced, directly due to the epidemic in Salem, was the women's night celebration in the new Masonic Temple in Danvers. This was to have been one of the principal events of the dedication affairs of the temple, but it has been postponed indefinitely.

Meanwhile State and city officials are combining in efforts to stamp out the plague of scarlet fever, and to determine its source. In Lynn, where is located Andrew Schlehuber, Inc., the catering concern which served the spreads at both Weymouth and Salem, Dr. Michael R. Donovan, Lynn health commissioner, advances the theory that the original germs which started the havoc of disease may have come from some one of the outside help summoned in from Boston to assist at the catering. In other words, Dr. Donovan suspects a germ carrier.

PLANT CLOSED.

The catering concern has been closed by Charles G. McGlone, its president-treasurer, until a thorough investigation has been made. Officials have tested the milk at a farm which supplies the catering concern, but no trace of scarlet fever was found, Dr. Donovan said.

School children and adults in Salem, Peabody, Springfield, Manchester and Lynn have been added to the probably more than 69 cases of scarlet fever existing in Weymouth.

Thirteen Salem High School pupils, four of their teachers, and some of their guests are down with the disease. All of them attended the Salem High School senior dinner Thursday night. Three of the pupils live in Peabody.

In Springfield, ten cases were found, all of whom had attended the Knights Templar dinner. One or two cases were found in Manchester.

100 CASES QUARANTINED

In all more than 100 cases are under quarantine. But health officials assert they believe the epidemic is well in hand, despite the alarm of many people that more cases will develop in this section.

Five of the employes of Schlehuber, Inc., have come down with the disease, all mild cases, since Thursday. Mr. McGlone himself believes the germ was carried in by some one of the extra corps of waiters engaged for that night. Since Thursday the concern has catered to affairs at which more than 8,000 persons were fed.

Among the ill in Salem are both the principal and vice principal of Salem High school, Maurice R. Smith and William R. Barry. Both were at the spread. The vice principal's wife, Mrs. Barry, also is down with scarlet fever.

Dr. Herbert Lombard of the State Board of Health asserts that officials are continuing their investigation. They are not certain yet just whether it was the ice cream or the salad which was infected.

FIRE TRUCK IN CRASH; 3 HURT

A speeding fire wagon crashing into an automobile, perhaps fatally injuring its three occupants, a barrage of soap barrels hurled high in air, innumerable explosions of glycerine, trapped firemen and daring work on the part of volunteers marked one of the most spectacular general alarm fires ever seen in Watertown.

James Vahey of No. 61 Mascot street, his wife, Mabel, and Miss Anna Magher of Ivy street, Watertown, were hurled from an automobile owned by the Edison Electric Illuminating Company when combination wagon No. 2 of the Watertown fire department crashed into them on Mt. Auburn street. The auto was reduced to matchwood and scrap iron and the three suffered fractured skulls and internal injuries.

The blaze was in the Warren Soap Manufacturing Company plant on Water street, accessible from only one side and with its inflamable contents proved beyond the power of the firemen to cope with it.

Frequent explosions of glycerine and other materials used in soap manufacture sent flames soaring more than 100 feet in the air, scattered sparks for nearly a mile, at one time setting two small fires which were quickly extinguished, blew soap barrels about and for a time gravely menaced a huge gasometer af the Watertown plant of the Boston Consolidated Gas Light Company, and the car barns of the Boston Elevated.

The firemen, finding the flames beyond their control, confined themselves to saving the nearby property, in which they succeeded, though with the help of citizen volunteers who manned garden hose and fire hose.

Harvey L. Ames of Palfrey street, Watertown, is credited with saving the car barns. Dragging a hose after him, he crawled along the ground to the edge of the car shops, less than 20 feet from the flames, and though the heat was intense, played a stream on the buildings, occasionally ducking into his own hose for relief.

The flames were licking close to a number of surface cars when other volunteers dragged lines of hose close enough to drown out the advancing fire.

The Elevated loss was confined to $2,000, but the soap plant was destroyed.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH HAS 106TH BIRTHDAY

No special observance marked the 106th anniversary of the consecration of old St. Paul's, now the Cathedral Church of St. Paul. The only service at the cathedral was the celebration of Holy Communion by the Rev. Charles R. Peck, who has been in charge of the cathedral since the resignation of Dr. John T. Dallas from the staff upon his elevation to the bishopric of New Hampshire.

Married

OFF TO NIAGARA

MISS M'NAMARA NOW BRIDE

Miss Alice Lenore McNamara, daughter of Police Lieutenant and Mrs. John E. McNamara of No. 182 Main street, Watertown, and James C. Walton of No. 17 Carleton street, Newton, sweethearts since childhood, were married today in St. Patrick's Church, Watertown.

Walton is a graduate of M. I. T., '23, and is employed as a chemical engineer. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. William J. Duffy. Miss Mary Gildea was maid of honor and Joseph Walton, brother of the groom, was best man.

The bridesmaids were Miss Eileen McNamara and Miss Alice Dwyer and the flower girl was Miss Dorothy Canty. Frank and Alfred McNamara, brothers of the bride, were the ushers. Following a reception at the Waltham Country Club, the couple left on a wedding trip to Canada and Niagara Falls.

THREE IN KLAN RIOT ARE FREED BY COURT

Hudson, Wis., June 30 (A.P.).—Charges against three of fifteen men in the Ku Klux Klan riot case were dismissed today and the others were bond over to the Fall term of Circuit Court.

The men dismissed were Rev. Peter Rice, pastor of the Hudson Catholic Church; Tony Lombard, Hudson High School pupil, and George Hennesy, railroad machinist.

The men were held in connection with a disturbance at a Ku Klux Klan meeting at which the tent was burned.

HEAR CONVICT IN QUIGLEY TRIAL

Percy Friedman, serving a seven-year sentence at State Prison, arrived under guard at Federal District Court today to testify as star witness for the government in the rum conspiracy trial of Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley of Chelsea and 13 others.

Also on hand was Mrs. Bessie Berger, wife of Samuel Berger of Chelsea, one of the government witnesses of yesterday.

U. S. Attorney Harold P. Williams expressed his intention of waiving previous objections to the introduction of convictions against government witnesses by defense counsel. Some of these witnesses have lengthy records, involving prison sentences not yet served.

Judge Morris said he would permit the introduction of records, but would not allow the witnesses to be questioned regarding them, except on a question of identification.

The cross-examination of Sam Gerscovitz was resumed by Attorney Edward J. Voke for Mayor Quigley. Gerscovitz ran three stores in Chelsea from 1916 to 1925, located on Poplar, Williams and Auburn streets.

The witness admitted under cross-examination that his testimony yesterday was wrong when he said no Chelsea police visited his store on Williams street. Gerscovitz admitted that the store was raided four or five times by the Chelsea police, and that he appeared in court three times to answer to their charges.

TEACHING PROCESSION SHOULD BE PROFESSION

Philadelphia, June 30 (A.P.).—Teacher turnover is one of the weakest spots in the American educational system, said a report on tenure of office submitted today to the National Education Association by Dr. Frederick M. Hunter, Oakland, Calif.

"In many sections of the country teaching is a procession rather than a profession," the report declared. "Very different from the 'hire and fire' system existing in the United States is the protection afforded teachers in foreign countries. There is no question that there is an inestimable loss in school efficiency each year due to teacher turnover."

New Bedford, June 30 (I.N.S.).—Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Kenyon had a fine vacation, but when they got home they discovered they had left three burners on their gas stove running. The gas bill was $110. The Kenyons refused to pay. The gas company attached their home.

AL WILL WELCOME CAL TO NEW YORK STATE

Albany, N. Y., June 30 (A.P.).—When President Coolidge settles down to his vacation rest at his camp on the shore of Osgood Lake in the Adirondacks, one of his first callers will be Governor Smith.

The Governor said today he intended to motor to Osgood Lake, attended by some of his staff, soon after the arrival of the President to extend to Mr. Coolidge an official welcome in the name of the State of New York.

SHOOTS OFF GUN IN WAR OVER GAS STOVE

Ralph D'Ambrosio, 46, of No. 877 Chestnut street, Waban, and Joseph DeChair, 55, of the same address, wouldn't let Cyril M. Hollander, a builder, of Tamworth road, Waban, get a gas stove out of the Chestnut street house where he had left stored. Hollander told the police, and said DeChair and D'Ambrosio drove him away, and one of them struck him. He ran home, got a gun and fired one shot out his front door. The two men were arrested by Motorcycle Officer Larry O'Donnell, and after arraignment in Newton Court today were held for a hearing July 7.

BOMB WRECKS HOME OF NEWSPAPER PUBLISHER

Wheeling, W. Va., June 30 (A.P.). The home of H. C. Ogden, publisher of the Wheeling Intelligencer and the Wheeling News, was damaged by an explosion today. Police hold the theory a bomb exploded. No one was injured. Police found parts of a bomb.

MISS LONG WEDS T. P. BRADY

Miss Lillian B. Long of No. 300 Hyde Park avenue and Thomas P. Brady of Morton street, Forest Hills, were married in St. Andrew the Apostle Church, Walk Hill street, Forest Hills, today.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Deputy Park Commissioner William P. Long. Mae E. Long, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, while the groom had his brother, Vincent Brady, as best man.

Following a honeymoon to the Shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre, Mr. and Mrs. Brady will make their home in the Arborway, Jamaica. The ushers at the wedding were Patrick McGuiness, William Murphy, Dr. W. E. Nash and Thomas McGuiness.

WRECK CAUSED BY "DEAD OR SICK" ENGINEER

Washington, June 30 (A.P.).—Failure of Engineman Gordon of the Cincinnati Limited to control his train as required by automatic block signals was given by the Interstate Commerce Commission today as the cause of the wreck, June 16, of two Pennsylvania Railroad passenger trains near Gray, Pa., in which 16 people were killed and 86 injured.

The failure of the engineman, the commission reported, was believed to have been due to his "sudden death or physical incapacitation."

Had an adequate automatic train stop or trin control system been in use the ccident would have been prevented, the report said.

BAR TO U. S. BUSINESS MEN INVESTIGATED

Washington, June 30 (A.P.).—The government is investigating an orderissued by the Governor of Lower California, Mexico, designed to prohibit persons doing business in Mexico from residing north of the international boundary. Ambassador Sheffield has been instructed to ask the Mexico city government whether it has approved the order.

A hundred or more Americans in business, principally in Mexacali and Tia Juana, the Lower California Governor claims, reside in the United Statesa nd thereby earn their incomes from Mexico and spend them outsideof that country.

Seized Vessel Released

New Haven, June 30 (I.N.S.).—The British schooner J. Duffy and a large cargo of liquor seized in Long Island Sound in December, 1924, will not be forfeited to the government, according to a decision handed down today dismissing the government's application for a libel against the vessel and its cargo.

Wales May Lose His Record as Rough Rider

Aldershot, England, June 30.—Prince Henry, third son of King George of England, is following the career of his elder brother, the Prince of Wales. Prince Henry has just been thrown by a horse in a jumping competition.

A dog frightened the Prince's mount it reared, and off went the Prince. Henry fell upon his back, but jumped right up again, and said he wasn't hurt.

'WRECK-PROOF' R. R. SYSTEM

New York, June 30 (I.N.S.).—A new "wreck-proof" system for both passenger and freight trains has been adopted by the New York Central Railroad, entailing the use of wig-wag signals between train crews and trackside watchers, on duty every hour of the day and night.

With the eyes of hundreds of men watching each train in its flight from terminal to terminal, it is expected to avoid catastrophies, such as the recent Pennsylvania crash near Pittsburgh and the New Haven wreck at Kingston, R. I.

High speed tends to loosen the mechanism of the trucks and wheels and even steel rails wear out, a railroad official pointed out. Track walkers discover the unsafe rail and replace it, but the only way that has been devised for eliminat'on of peril from broken or loose mechanical parts beneath the car is close observation as the train passes.

FLOATING HOSPITAL BEGINS ITS TRIPS

Boston's Floating Hospital ship started its errand of mercy and health when it cast off lines at Atlantic avenue and went out into the harbor on its first trip of the season. It will remain in service until Sept. 15. Orthopedic and hel'o-therapy wards are the two most featured departments of the hospital ship, curing lame children and the victims of rickets. The boat returns to the North End Pier, at 4:30 every afternoon.

CARRYING COALS TO —? NO, TOYS TO GERMANY!

Nuremberg, Germany, June 30 (A.P.).—Germany, once purveyor of toys to the whole world, not only faces an alarming falling-off in her toy exports business, but is unable to stem the tide of foreign toys inundating the German markets.

At the present time Germany is exporting only 2 per cent. of the toys she sent abroad in 1913, while the imports again equal those of 1913, and with prospects of a steady increase. The United States heads the imports list for 1925, chiefly in rubber toys.

STORK BEATS TAXICAB

It only took E. J. Mills, No. 38 Stillman road, Roslindale, five minutes to pilot his taxicab from the home of John Berkley, of No. 223 Eustis street, Roxbury, to the Lying-in Hospital, but he couldn't beat the stork.

By the time the hospital was reached Mrs. Grace Berkley was the mother of a dainty little daughter, just seven pounds. The baby was born in the taxicab with Daddy Berkley and old Dr. Stork the only attendants of the mother. Mills kept to his wheel and drove right along.

Both mother and daughter are doing nicely, the hospital reports.

HUB GIRL QUEST TO END JULY 10

The quest for The Boston Girl of 1926 will close Saturday, July 10.

The silversmiths have practically finished the silver laurel wreaths which will be awarded three girls the judges select as most typical of the smart Boston Girl in style, personality and poise.

The judges will meet to select The Boston Girl of 1926 and decide which three girls get the cash awards of $500, $250 and $100 some time during the period July 12 to July 24.

They will consider each of some hundreds of photographs, eliminating some and inviting the girls depicted in the others to appear before them.

But the Boston Girl of 1926 may not be among those photographs at present.

Perhaps you would be she and gain the silver laurel, the $500 in gold and the distinction of having your style acclaimed by four fashion and art authorities if your photograph was among them.

Photographs will be received or made free until Saturday, July 10.

Why not have yours before the judges?

SUSPENDED SENTENCE IS GIVEN TAYLOR

Harris Taylor of Intervale street, Roxbury, arrested recently as a result of a raid on the Phalanx Orchestra Club at No. 2150 Washington street, Roxbury, on June 18, when several pints of liquor were seized there, was given a four-months suspended sentence by Judge Hayden in Roxbury Court. A charge of keeping and exposing liquor for sale had been preferred against Taylor. It was also stated by police that when he was seized Taylor was carrying a bag containing four pints of liquor. He pleaded guilty.

NEW GOVERNMENT OF CANADA IS UPHELD

Ottawa, June 30 (A.P.)—The new government of Arthur Meighen, leader of the Conservatives, early this morning in the House of Commons won a victory over the Liberals, led by Mackenzie King, who resigned the Premiership Monday. A majority of ten was given the Meighen regime on the Conservative party's amendment to the report of the commission on irregularities in the customs service.

It was on the belief that the amendment would be passed that the King government resigned.

NAB REDS AT UNVEILING OF U. S. WAR MEMORIAL

Paris, June 30 (A.P.)—A dispatch to Le Matin from St. Nazaire says the three armed Anarchists arrested there Saturday were found to be in possession of considerable ammunition and false identity papers.

They were taken into custody at the unveiling of a memorial commemorating the landing of the first Americans in France during the World War. General John J. Pershing spoke at the ceremony.

Queen Gets Even With Suzanne; Snubs Her

Wimbledon, June 30 (I.N.S.).—Two weeks ago Queen Mary was most gracious to Mlle. Lenglen, when she presented her with an anniversary medal at the Wimbledon tournament.

Today the Queen could not see Suzanne, even though she sat only a few seats away.

The gossips immediately conjectured that the Queen was not pleased with the show of temperament which Suzanne made last week, which kept the Queen waiting for two hours to see Suzanne play, only to be eventually disappointed.

DANCING MASTERS "bar the Charleston," but won't succeed in driving out that wild dance. It is probably like that David danced before the Ark. It enables the dancer to express frenzied emotions for which words can't be found.

Dancing originally was all wild, as among American Indians or African savages. Primitive man, desiring to "express himself," danced himself into exhaustion.

THEN CAME brief control, stately minuet, waltz, jerky polka, quadrille. There is no personality or expression in them.

The Charleston allowing youth to throw up both legs and arms at once, will stay until our craving for "self expression" shall have been satisfied.

THOSE THAT understand finance, there may be two or three among our 115,000,000 watching Calhaun's efforts to stabilize the franc.

Money is mysterious. If the franc goes down to nothing, as the German mark did, danger is feared—although Germany survived it.

If the franc went back to its pre-war value, or half that, France would be swept by a dreadful panic of "dear money."

The things that men do not understand include money.

MRS. AIMEE SEMPLE McPHERSON, lady preacher, vanished mysteriously and the world learned that she was kidnaped, carried into Mexico, held prisoner, etc. Some reporter suggested that there was a "love mystery." Not at all. The lady will only marry a man six feet tall at least, able to play the trombone, a good singer, "a good and holy man," and also a preacher. It sounds like a difficult combination.

CHANG TSO-LIN, Manchurian dictator, is conferring with his rival and enemy, Wu Pei-Fu, in Peking, and China may have peace—for a while.

Streets were sprinkled with golden sand, flowery arches erected by the people to welcome the war lords. Chang brought 100,000 troops into Peking. Wu brought only 30,000.

ALL THAT is as old as the Great Wall.

The strange thing is to see people with golden sand and flowers welcoming men that put them to cutting each other's throats.

ROME WILL build subways, and Mussolini, who respects the past, will avoid as far as possible running fast trains through the Catacombs. If the old bones of the early Christians and others could think, how would they explain electric trains rushing through the ground with the crowds of the living? Would they believe those trains on their way to the infernal regions an improvement on Charon's slow old boat.

Charon, son of Night, and grandson of Chaos, replaced by electricity and modern engineering.

ROY D. FINCH, New York's able State engineer, shows that neglect to harness the St. Lawrence costs New York State 10,000,000 tons of coal every year. Waste does not disturb the American people.

REVERE BEACH TO OPEN FULL BLAST FOR FOURTH

The "Night Before the Fourth" with its associations of fun, fire and hilarity, will become a reality at Revere Beach this year. The celebration will start at midnight Sunday and thousands of red lights along the boulevards will indicate amusements of all kinds are open. Bonfires, dance pavilions, shooting galleries, roller coasters, beer and drink stands, the hurdlers, the Whip, the Pit, and hundreds of other emporiums of laughter will run full blast, in accordance with the plan of the Amusements Division of the Revere Chamber of Commerce to add its bit to the celebration of the Fourth.

He pretended he was tired, but the real reason was that he was too courteous to inflict himself on others. Almost everyone suffers from this perfectly natural but distressing problem of body odor.

Most people have learned that local applications under the arms correct only part of the condition. Lifebuoy wholly prevents it. Ordinary baths help of course, but their effect is far more lasting when Lifebuoy is used.... That's because of the mild but effective antiseptic which makes Lifebuoy a health soap. The same property which protects against sickness removes the cause of body odor.

In every pore of your body—not merely under arms—fatty wastes and acids of perspiration constantly collect. The peculiar penetration of Lifebuoy lather results in complete antiseptic cleansing of pores and skin. After a Lifebuoy bath you stay fresh and sweet all day long. The antiseptic smell of Lifebuoy rinses away completely. Lifebuoy is orange red—the color of its pure palm fruit oil.

ZIONISTS WANT $300,000,000

Buffalo, June 30 (A.P.).—In the closing hours of the convention of the Zionist Organization of America an ambitious program for the conversion of Palestine into a real home land for the Jews was set forth by David Remes, Palestine labor leader and head of the Palestine Workmen's Corporation.

The plan calls for the loan of $300,000,000 by the Jews of the world to provide means to settle 40,000 families on undeveloped land in the country, this fund to be repaid by the immigrants over a period of fifty years.

The budget set forth by Mr. Remes was: Sixty million dollars for land, $40,000,000 for improvements; $60,000,000 to settle 40,000 families; $100,000,000 capital for mortgage loans and buildings and $20,000,000 for other colonization expenditures.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Margaret Thayer Weds John Richard Suydam, Jr., at Southboro

A BRIDE SLENDERLY TALL AND GRACEful in nuptial white and an attending bevy of femininity in dainty Nile green made the central motif of the second important wedding gracing June's waning days. It was the bridal of Miss Margaret Thayer and John Richard Suydam, Jr., out in St. Mark's Chapel, Southboro.

THE BRIDE'S SUPPLE satin gown was deep ivory in tone and had long sleeves and straight lines. A square ended court train added graceful length, and the veil, of filmy Duchesse, was bound close to the head in becoming cap effect.

BRIDESMAIDS IN SOFT green chiffons with floating cavalier capes and rippled skirts walked two by two to the altar. Large arm clusters of garden flowers, the yellow tones predominating, and leghorn hats in poke shape with green chiffon crowns completed their costumes.

MISS MARY OTIS, Miss Edith Parker, Miss Virginia Gardner and Miss Barbara Forbes, popular Boston girls, were of the octet attending the bride. Also Miss Grace Wrenn, New York; Miss Margaret Barker and Miss Josephine Choate, Southboro, and Miss Julia Doughty, Ipswich.

THE REV. DR. WILLIAM H. THAYER, master of St. Mark's, read the marriage service which made his daughter Mrs. Suydam, and a brother, Robert H. Thayer, gave her in marriage. A company of the elect more than filled the edifice.

NATURALLY the ceremonial carried much interest for the William Stuart Forbeses, Mrs. J. Harleston Parker, Mrs. Philip Gardner, whose daughters were in the bride's entourage. Mrs. Gardner wore a cafe au lait ensemble, and Mrs. Parker, who had her young son with her, was in tan chiffon.

DISTINGUISHED IN BLACK satin with touches of white, Mrs. DeForest Danielson was of the company, likewise Mrs. George W. Cushing, Mrs. Henry DuBois Tudor, Mrs. John Chipman Gray, Mrs. Thomas F. Lindsay, Mrs. Lindsay in melon pink chiffon.

THE BRIDE'S MOTHER, Mrs. Thayer, wore a broad hat of black and frock of bois de rose with flying pansie. Mrs. John Richard Suydam, of Park avenue, New York, the bridegroom's mother, was in mauve lace and chiffon.

GIRL INTIMATES of the bride were out in profusion, each charming to behold in Summery chiffons and floppy hats. Miss Eleanor Mason and Miss Eleanor Gibson wore the sweetpea tinted frocks which were their bridesmaid attire for the Towle-Russell wedding in Trinity Church a few days ago.

MISS ELLEN HALLOWELL in poppy flowered chiffon; Miss Hannah Hallowell in green and white; Miss Helen Lovering in printed satin; Miss Harriet and Miss Carolyn Saltonstall in blue with small hats, Miss Elizabeth Lyman in rose, and Miss Grace Cushing in pink were of the bevy.

A NORTH SHORE contingent included Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Woods and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Woods (Priscilla Pollard) the latter chic and attractive in tan with enormous black hat.

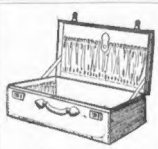

OTHERS FROM the North Shore were Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Wolcott (Sybil Appleton), Mrs. Charlie Choate, 3d, of the Southboro family, was, as usual, picturefully costumed in vividly tinted silk and wide black hat. Mrs. Choate is one of the smart set's most effective young matrons.

FOLLOWING THE CEREMONIAL guests strolled through the cloister to the reception and wedding breakfast in a drawing room banked with Summertime blossoms in rare profusion from various Southboro greenhouses.

THE NEW MRS. SUYDAM belongs to the Vincent Club and the Junior League and attended school in Italy. Mr. Suydam, Harvard 1909, holds Hasty Pudding and D. K. E. membership, also Knickerbocker in New York. They go abroad for the wedding journey and will live in Southboro.

ST. MARK'S SCHOOL chapel is rich in ecclesiastical relics and treasures. One most admired is the triptych of Venetian origin, with its beautiful central sacred figure. The late John Singer Sargent has declared it an unusually fine specimen of churchly beauty.

BOSTON WOMAN DRY DELEGATE

Miss Cora Frances Stoddard of Boston is one of the American delegates to the International Congress Against Alcoholism, according to announcement made today by the State Department in Washington. The congress will open in Dorpat, Esthonia, on July 21. The American delegation will attend in an unofficial capacity.

Miss Stoddard, a well-known temperance worker, was one of the American delegates to the 1920 "dry" congress in Washington. She was appointed a delegate again in 1921 by the Harding administration to the congress which was held that year in Lausanne, Switzerland.

Other delegates to the 1926 congress, as announced by the State Department, are: Bishop John L. Nuelsen of Zurich; Bishop James Cannon, Jr., and Dr. Edwin C. Dinwiddie of Washington and Miss Annie A. Gordon of Evanston, Ill.

BOY KILLED, TWO HURT, IN FIREWORKS BLAST

Providence, June 30.—Joseph T. Donato of Ring street is dead, and Maria and Cecilia Ciccarone of Riverview, were seriously burned in an explosion of fireworks, caused by the children playing with them at the breakfast table.

The youngsters threw the fireworks upon the table and they were ignited by a cigar or cigarette stub. Donato's throat and lungs were seared by fire. He died in the hospital.

COOLING PLANT IN THEATRE

The Scollay Square Olympia Theatre has installed a modern refrigerating plant that is the newest thing and last word in theatre cooling machinery.

The system employed is a distinct innovation in equipment of theatres for comfort during the Summer months and is said by its builder to be the largest cooling plant installed in any theatre in the country and the only one of its kind.

THREE CYCLES.

In the process of refrigeration there are three complete cycles and this system embraces all three.

The first cycle consists of a complete cooling plant, having a capacity of three hundred tons of ice a day and the refrigerant used is a non-inflammable, non-poisonous and odorless gas, which cannot become a source of danger.

The equipment in this cycle consists of two great compressors weighing twenty tons; two immense fly wheels each ten feet in diameter and weighing approximately seven tons, driven by two motors of 250 horse power; and condensing and expansion coils in which the length of piping aggregates 50,000 feet. Thus the piping in these coils if straightened out would reach from Beacon Hill to Newton Corner.

AIR-WASHING.

The second cycle consists of air-washing, cleaning and humidification, all of which processes take place in an enclosed chamber of 3,000 cubic feet capacity.

The third cycle consists of the processes of supplying the refrigerated, washed and dehumidified air throughout the theatre and exhausting the used air from the theatre. This is done by a monster fan or blower which forces the air through at the rate of 90,000 cubic feet a minute, so that there is a complete change of air every five minutes.

Some idea of the size of the plant can be gained from the following facts: Its ice capacity of 300 tons a day is equal to a trainload. The total length of piping is about ten miles. The various electrical units in the installation consume about as much power as is generated in a municipal plant serving a community of 20,000 population.

DIAMOND JUBILEE YEAR

WRITES POEMS FOR CARBARN SLAYERS

CLEMENCY WORKER
Miss Anna M. McDonald, of No. 8 Haverford street, Jamaica Plain, who is writing poems in behalf of three condemned youths.

Realizing the value of every hour as the execution date draws ever nearer, members of the Clemency Committee today launched an intensive drive for commutation of the sentences of the three youths condemned to die for the Waltham carbarn murder.

New joint petitions calling on Governor Fuller and Council to modify the death penalty to life imprisonment in the cases of Heinlein, McLaughlin and Devereaux are being scattered throughout the State by district committees headed by women.

HEADQUARTERS ACTIVE.

The committee headquarters at the corner of Market and Henshaw streets, Brighton, buzzed with activity. Secretary Frank J. Manning renewed the appeal for volunteer workers and for automobiles.

Funds are also solicited in order to meet current expenses. The committee passed a vote of thanks to Mrs. John Twomey, of No. 16 Monroe Road, Brighton, for free use of the premises where nightly meetings are held.

Mrs. Henry McGuinness, chairman of the committee, announced that a whist party would be held on Thursday evening, July 8, at the committee headquarters, No. 396 Market street, Brighton, the proceeds to swell the fund. The building is admirably fitted for such a feature.

Moved by the plight of the doomed youths, Miss Anna M. McDonald, of No. 8 Haverford street, Jamaica Plain, has written a poem for each of the prisoners in an effort to aid the campaign for clemency. She sent the poems to the office of Attorney Charles D. Driscoll, counsel for Edward J. Heinlein, in Barristers Hall.

Miss McDonald dedicated the following poem to Heinlein:

TO MY MOTHER

Dear Mother, ever loving,
So thoughtful of your boy;
To serve me was your pleasure;
To love me was your joy.

'Tis now when evening hovers
And life for me is through,
My thoughts go back to childhood,
And Mother, dear, to you.

So proud of all my efforts;
My every word so dear,
And even now so faithful
To me in prison here.

In prison, oh, my dearest!
To you I brought disgrace
And made the tears line furrows
And the shadows shade your face.

But not a murderer, Mother!
Though I take the slayer's share
And smirch your name forever
With the blackness of the Chair.

I know when Time is over
And Eternity is won
That you'll be proud in Heaven
To greet me as your son!—

'Tis true I brought you sorrow
And all the grief you know,
But will it help you bear it
When you know I love you so!

FIRST KENNEDY THRILL JULY 3

Craig Kennedy's thrilling adventures will be pictured for you daily in the Boston Evening American, beginning next Saturday.

Craig Kennedy, as you doubtless know, is the famous scientific detective, the creation of Arthur B. Reeve. This famous criminologist will be introduced to Boston Evening American readers next Saturday in the first of a number of exciting exploits.

Each day Kennedy produces some new surprise as he tracks down the criminals with the aid of the latest crime detecting devices which he uses to much advantage. Interest grows each day, with startling and unexpected turns, until finally Kennedy plays his trump card and the mystery is solved.

You will find this series of illustrations will grip your interest from first to last, and this feature will be a real treat for you each day when you open your paper.

Be sure to watch for Craig Kennedy when he appears in the Boston Evening American next Saturday, July 3.

QUAKE KILLS 70 IN SUMATRA

Rome, June 30 (A.P.).—Several strong earthquake shocks, varying in distance from several hundred to ten thousand kilometerh, were registered today at the observatories in Padua, Xavenza and Benevento.

Padang, Sumatra, June 30 (A.P.).—The Governor returned today after a tour of the earthquake region and estimated 20 Chinese and 50 native inhabitants were killed.

Practically all stone buildings in Padang collapsed. Many wooden dwellings remained intact but occupants deserted them and are living in tents, fearful of further shocks.

New York, June 30 (A.P.).—Since last Saturday, when the Mediterranean region from Italy to Egypt was shaken by earthquakes, there have been seismic disturbances in various parts of the world, including that in Sumatra.

Great damage was done on the Island of Rhodes, in the Aegean Sea, at Candia, Island of Crete, and in the Province of Foggia in Italy. Many houses were razed and numerous persons injured. In Egypt much damage to property resulted and the populace was terrified.

Shocks were felt in southern Rhodesia, Africa, and at five towns in France—Strasbourg, Epinal, Colmar, Mulhausen and Belfort.

NOW WE KNOW WHO WON WAR! DOUGHNUT MAKERS!

Omaha, June 30 (A.P.).—A medal for the doughnut making service during the great war was claimed by Miss Alice Howell, Lincoln, Neb., at the Women's Overseas Service convention here.

Miss Howell declared "the influence of this branch was far reaching. Not only did the doughnut-makers have a conspicuous part in the winning of the war, but their methods still are prevalent, for all Europe has been in the frying pan ever since we left, and every nation has been trying to raise dough."

The new summer frocks are too frail, too colorful, to stand any treatment but the gentlest. Rubbing with cake soap destroys their fresh, new look. And their life is cut in half, their colors faded, by the action of the free alkali in ordinary soaps—cakes, flakes, or chips. A few cents' worth of Lux keeps your frocks fresh, new-looking!

ONE FALSE STEP and you destroy forever the very thing that made you want to buy them

How should one renew the soft, brightly colored summer scarfs with the greatest safety? Never rub them with cake soap! Never use soap chips or flakes that contain free alkali! Guard their lovely texture, their pretty colors with pure safe Lux!

WHAT a multitude of delicate, colorful fabrics—sheer and semi-sheer silk crepes, chiffons, printed silks, georgettes, and lustrous new rayons! Never were summer frocks more exquisite, more perishable.

And the hot weather season is their danger season. Your precious summer frocks must be repeatedly washed—renewed and rejuvenated over and over again!

You need not risk them even once! A single wrong washing invisibly, perhaps, but surely, weakens delicate fabrics. Two unseen enemies destroy their sheen, their color—and their charm disappears in a twinkling.

Two deadly enemies of delicate fabrics

The first enemy is rubbing. The bloom of silk and rayon is dimmed, the delicate fibres weakened by rubbing with cake soap. And your clothes wear out long before their time! No rubbing is necessary with Lux. Its fragile, tissue-thin flakes whip up immediately into a bowlful of rich, bubbling suds. Refreshing, renewing, absolutely safe!

The second enemy is free alkali. Ordinary soaps—cakes, chips or flakes—containing free alkali are ruinous. Sensitive fabrics are weakened, their life cut in half, their colors faded by the action of alkali. There is no free alkali in Lux. Nothing to destroy the life of delicate fabrics or fade their colors. Lux is safe for anything water alone won't harm. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

You wonder how such gossamer-thin, myriad-tinted stockings can stand the repeated washings they must be given. They can't—unless you give them the very gentlest treatment! Pure, sparkling Lux keeps stockings silky and new-looking even after repeated washings.

If it's safe in pure water alone it's safe in LUX

Week-end sleeping car train from New York, leaves Grand Central Terminal Fridays 10.30 p. m., for Hyannis and Woods Hole, making connection at the latter point with the steamer to Oak Bluffs, Marthas Vineyard, due at 7.50 a. m.

Coordinating Railroad-Motor Coach-Steamer Transportation

NEW routes to Cape Cod and the Islands of Marthas Vineyard and Nantucket are unfolded in the plan for coordination of Railroad, Motor Coach and Steamer Transportation, effective June 13th. The addition of luxurious, comfortable motor coaches operated by the New England Transportation Company connecting at various Cape Points with trains to and from Boston gives the Cape a quality of transportation never before possessed.

The through train service to Cape Cod has been improved generally. New service to Woods Hole, with a Motor Coach connection at Falmouth, provides transportation from the Buzzards Bay section to points along Nantucket Sound. New service by train to Plymouth with Motor Coach connections for Hyannis opens up a new and most attractive route to the Cape. Motor Coach Service is also operated from Middleboro to Hyannis, and Hyannis to Chatham and later in the month it is expected the Hyannis to Provincetown line will start. Thus, a blanket of efficient, comfortable and pleasurable Railroad and Motor Coach Service is laid over the Cape with connections at Woods Hole with the Island steamers.

TARNISHED WINGS

by BEATRICE BURTON
Author of "GILDED KISSES" and "PIRATE OF HEARTS"

Story of a Boston Girl Who Liked Jazz Music and the Bright Lights

It was no trick for Merry to sell beauty aids—not with skin and hair like hers.

READ THIS FIRST

MERRY LOCKE, twenty, and pretty, falls in love with a man in a gray suit whom she passes on the street every day.

One night when she is at a circus with her youngest sister, JINNY, and DERRICK JONES, who lives next door, she meets the Man in Gray. He is a young lawyer named ANTHONY GAINES, and is a good friend of MORLEY KAUFMAN, who employs Merry's sister, CASSIE, in his office.

Tony and Merry see a great deal of each other for a month, and he asks her to marry him. Merry wants to be married at once, but Tony insists that they wait for six months. Merry has told him about all her other love affairs, particularly about the one she had with Derrick Jones; and Tony wants her to be sure that she really cares for him.

DAD, Merry's father, dies, leaving almost no money. Shortly after the funeral, HELEN, the oldest of the four Locke sisters, announces that she has married BILL HEPWORTH, whose father owns the store where Dad worked.

Tony's mother, who has been out of town, returns with a cousin and Tony doesn't come to see Merry that night. Unreasonably jealous and angry, Merry goes to see Helen in her new home with Derrick Jones, and lets him kiss her, feeling that in this way she's getting even" with Tony.

The next day, still hurt and jealous, she refuses to answer the telephone when Tony calls up.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER XIV

TONY GAINES telephoned the house three times that morning. But Merry stubbornly refused to talk to him.

"Why does he bother about me?" she asked herself. "Let him call up his Cousin Louise and take her for a drive in his car."

Without ever having a glimpse of anyone in her short, happy life be a job," Merry said suddenly to anyone in her shop, happy life before.

After Tony's third call. Jinny announced that she would tell him no more fibs.

"He must know you're here, Merry," she said, crossly. For Merry had fairly haunted the telephone for weeks, in the hope that he would call her up.

"I think I'll go out and look for a job," Merry said suddenly to Jinny, and put on her hat.

She would show Tony Gaines that she didn't need him in her life, any more than he needed her! She would go and get a job in an office keeping the files or answering the telephone, perhaps. There were lots of good-looking men in offices. But the job she found was not in an office filled with good-looking men. It was not in an office at all.

It was in a beauty shop in the Back Bay where Merry had her nails manicured a dozen times before she learned to trim and polish them herself.

As she came up to it on Boylston street, she stopped to look at the fascinating bottles and boxes that were grouped on a piece of purple crepe paper in the window. Muscle oil, pore paste, liquid rouge, paste rouge, dry rouge, big boxes of bath powder, little bottles of perfume.

Although Merry never used anything on her face but the slightest dusting of rice powder, she was intrigued by beauty aids as every woman in the world is intrigued fascinated by them.

Just as she was turning away, her eye fell on a pink card tucked into one corner of the window. "GIRL WANTED," it read.

In another second Merry was inside the shop.

Merry's Job

Merry had seen her often, and had thought she was "stickly looking."

She was, too. Her hair had been hennaed to a thick, oily red color, and she perspired through a film of liquid powder, so that her face always had a wet, pasty look. Her eyes glowed under lids that were brown with make-up.

"Manicure?" she asked, remembering Merry. She smiled with heavily rouged lips.

Instantly the smile vanished from

Sea Gives Up Part of Hero Cash in Rescue by 3

2 GIRLS AID IN SAVING BOY

Hub Engineer Drops $60 in Water, and Tide Brings $20 Back to Shore

It cost Charles Craig of Quincy $60 to assist two girls in the rescue of young Leonard Strick from the waters of Hough's Neck where the boy was marooned in a row boat and couldn't swim back, but the tide returnel a third of the sum today.

Now Craig, who is a Harvard graduate and a Boston engineer, is listening for the rest of his money to talk and hoping it can be heard above the murmum of what the wild sea waves are saying.

It all started last night when the Strick boy climbed into a rowboat at low tide and gave himself up to the occupations of youth that know no time limits.

The inevitable turn of the tide came and Leonard was in deep water. So deep he became frightened and let out a few lusty yells for help.

Fifteen-year-old Madeline Griffin of Jamaica Plain ran a dead heat with Patricia Craig, twelve, daughter of Charles Craig, to rescue the boy.

As they plunged into the briny Mr. Craig peeled off his jacket and lent a hand. With three such rescuers Leonard just had to submit to being saved.

Craig found his pockets empty when he reached shore. But today while he gazed at the ocean, thinking how his greenbacks had vanished, twenty $1 bills came floating back in the embrace of a piece of seaweed.

BOSTON PORT BUSINESS SHOWS LARGE INCREASE

The Boston Tidewater Terminal, Inc., report, showing an increase of 221,880 tons and 208 vessels for the last two years over the two years preceding is accepted in maritime circles as sound basis for belief in a continued expansion of business in the port of Boston. The Boston Tidewater is operating the Army Base, with its spaciousness and it is expected that the Army Base, with its spaciousness and equipment for the handling of imports and exports will occasion a further increase of shipping in this port during the current year.

ATTLEBORO POLICEMAN WITH MEDAL SUSPENDED

Attleboro, June 30.—Police Officer John Joseph Kelley, the only officer in the city holding an award of a city medal for bravery, was suspended for three days without pay by Mayor George A. Sweeney, who charges that Officer Kelley loitered on his beat, that he talked with others other than police officers on his beat, and that he allowed fire crackers to be exploded on his beat.

'OLD ARMY GAME' GIVES LAUGHS

If you were confined to a hospital with a broken leg, a shattered hip, infection from gunshot wounds or any of the numerous ailments which men in the naval service or World War veterans suffer, don't you think it would be a treat if somebody brought a first-class movie right into the institution where you were laid up for repairs?

There's only one answer and that answer was given by each of the 400 sick and disabled men in the United States Naval Hospital, Chelsea, as they viewed the feature picture, "It's The Old Army Game," as guests of the Boston Evening American and Metropolitan Theatre. It was the first time the picture was shown in New England. The public will have an opportunity to see it during the week beginning next Saturday, at the Metropolitan Theatre.

Among the men at the hospital who viewed the picture, in which W. C. Fields, the former "Follies" star, is featured with Louise Brooks, was Chief Petty Officer Tony Augutus of Fall River, the largest man in the United States Navy. He weighs 400 pounds. When he went to the hospital six weeks ago he weighed 420 pounds.

"The picture was a splendid treat for the men," said Miss Edwina McCabe, recreation hostess at the hospital. "It was very thoughtful of the Boston Evening American and the Metropolitan Theatre management to show the picture here."

Captain George R. Freeman, commandant at the hospital, was of the same opinion.

The men at United States Veterans Hospital, West Roxbury, will view the picture tomorrow evening. On Friday night the 100 men confined to Soldiers Home of Massachusetts, Chelsea, will see it.

The schedule for next week is Tuesday evening, Home for Aged Couples, No. 2655 Columbus avenue; Wednesday morning, Massachusetts Hospital School (for crippled children), Canton. Other showings are being arranged for.

To facilitate matters representatives of this newspaper and the theatre are being conveyed to and from the institutions in Flint cars, through courtesy of General Manager Herbert L. Bailey and Manager William R. Fredericks of the Boston Flint Company.

CHAPTER XX.

ON our return to New York I again turned down all the big contracts offered and signed with the Harry Williams Vaudeville Company, a rival organization of Hyde's Comedians, at about half the salary we could have demanded anywhere else. I wanted to show Jim Hyde what he'd missed, and besides, we were to be the headliners of the Williams show. Again my folks complained about my business judgment.

"You shouldn't be vindictive, Georgie," said Dad. "We all think you should look at things from a strictly business standpoint."

"That's exactly what I'm doing," I argued, "and if you folks don't like the way I'm managing our affairs, just say so and I'll quit."

"All right, son. Have your own way about it." And the thing was settled.

When the Williams show opened in Chicago in September, 1895, I made a stiff kick to the management about the lettering on the three-sheet posters.

"The Four Cohans should be at least twice as big type as any other act on the bill," I asserted, and I made sure that every member of the company heard me, too.

"It's about time you guys got on to the fact that we're the biggest attraction in the show business."

This speech didn't make any particular hit with the performers, but it evidently impressed the management, because the posters were

M'CORMICK 'IN DARK' ON WIFE'S RUN

Costs Wealthy Chicago Woman $7,000 for 6 Hours; $100 in Tips

Chicago, June 30 (A.P.).—Why Mrs. Cyrus H. McCormick, Jr., rushed to Chicago on a special train which made a run of 16 hours and 56 minutes from New York and established a passenger record on the Pennsylvania, remained unexplained today.

Her brother, Harold Linn, said there was no illness in the family and some business matter might have been her reason.

Mr. McCormick remained in New York on business, it was understood, as they landed from Europe. His wife went to a hotel here, refusing to discuss the trip.

The engineer said the train had averaged seventy miles an hour and the trip was said to have cost nearly $7,000.

Mrs. McCormick in making her record-breaking run, saved six hours over the time she would have arrived in Chicago by taking a regular train. She spent one hour of that trying to dodge reporters. What she did with the other five hours was conjectural.

She left the train after handing out more than $100 in tips and went to the Drake Hotel, but the management said she was not registered. At the McCormick home her secretary and others professed ignorance of her arrival.

From New York it was reported the husband was on his way home on a regular train. He was quoted as saying he did not know the cause for his wife's hurry, that there was no trouble between them and she was not ill.

NORTH HAS SOFT COAL ENOUGH

Atlantic City, N. J., June 30 (A.P.).

Expert testimony to show that the Northern and east coal fields have resources in excess of those of the South, now in competition for the New England market, was produced before Interstate Commerce Commissioner Clyde B. Aitchison, sitting at the Marlborough-Blenheim Hotel, by the Central Pennsylvania Coal Producers' Association.

W. A. Silliman, of Altoona, geologist and civil engineer, estimated the coal remaining recoverable and remaining unmined in Pennsylvania on Jan. 1, 1925, amounted to 17,891,745,000 net tons, as against 14,937,268,000 in Southern West Virginia.

Silliman said there was in all probability in Pensylvania, Maryland and Northern West Virginia 23,678,733,000 net tons of commercial Stuminous, compared with 19,924,162,000 in the Southern bass rate districts.

This evidence was offered to substantiate the claims of the Pennsylvania operators they have an adequate supply from which to furnish fuel for the domestic consumption in New England.

BITTER G. O. P. BATTLE IN NORTH DAKOTA PRIMARY

Fargo, N. D., June 30 (A.P.).—A senatorial contest involving two Republican factions, and an attempted political "comeback" by A. C. Townley, once called the "Czar" of the Non-Partisan League, vied for interest in North Dakota's primary election today. It will determine supremacy between Republicans indorsed by the Non-Partisan League and the "regular" or Coolidge Republicans. The Non-Partisan group backs Senator Gerald P. Nye, appointed to the vacancy caused by the death of Senator E. F. Ladd. Nye is a candidate to fill Ladd's unexpired term and also for the next regular election.

New York, June 30.—Twenty families in a five-story tenement were driven out when a bomb placed in a hallway exploded and wrecked the building.

SMITH PROF IS 'RAD' IN TRAGEDY

Roscoe P. Conkling Wrote the Love Note That Led Brewster to Kill Wife and Self

"Rad," writer of the love letter to Mrs. Sydney Erskine Brewster, murdered by her husband who then committed suicide, is Roscoe P. Conkling, divorced husband of Grace Walcott Hazard Conkling, instructor of English at Smith College, it came out today.

It was the letter signed "Rad," and found in fragments in Brewster's pocket that caused Brewster to shoot his wife to death and then kill himself, according to the coroner at Glen Head, L. I., N. Y.

Mrs. Brewster, the former Frances Tracy Lyon, was well known in Boston and when she was married in 1923 to the former waiter and descendant of William Brewster, who came over in the Mayflower, her bridesmaid was the late Margaret Harding of Beacon street, daughter of the Federal Reserve Bank governor.

HERE'S FATAL LETTER.

Had it not been for discovery by Brewster of the following letter addressed to his wife, the socially prominent couple would be alive today in the opinion of the coroner:

"Tracy, Dearest:

"I am just back from a long trip on mule back in the mountains in Durango. I found your letter and this is just a line or two to catch the post, which goes out very soon. I am happy to have your letter and to know about you, for I have thought and held you in mind so much and so long. You must have felt some of it across the miles between us.

"I was glad (several) words missing from the torn fragments heralfolk attributed the poor, lonely old tamars to you. You know little could a man stand when a girl appears cruel in a staid manner.

LONELY IN WILDS.

"I have seen lots of queer creatures here and there, but no birds or animals equal to our Santo anenio friend.

"Soon I will write you more of myself and doings. I am lonely and miserable as can be, and just have one thought and that is to get away where I can see you even for a little.

"Oh, I have missed you so and everything you mean, for before I knew I should, but never dreamed how hard it was going to be. You dear, dear Tracy, whose name the wind sings in the trees and whose face lingers in the depth if twilight that clouds these old hills. Are you well and quite all right? I wonder.

"All my thought is with you and of you and I reach again for your hand across the miles between us. I must hurry this. Please let me know soon about you, will you dear? Always Your Rad."

Boy Burned in Woods Fire

Roland West to Spend Year on Sea Film

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

ON ANGELES, June 30.—I doubt if the movies ever have offered a more daring expedition than that planned by Roland West. After months of negotiation he is about to bring to the screen that widely read novel, "Two Years Before the Mast," by Richard H. Dana.

West plans to spend a year in making the Dana story, sailing all over the world. I am told that he will have a replica of the three-masted schooner so graphically described by Dana. Naturally such a picture is destined as a road show attraction. Mr. West who is producing it in association with Joseph Schenck occupies not only the position of director, but that of scenario writer as well. He is about to experiment along another line by becoming an unknown cast and letting the story stand on its own merits.

I have an idea that he may devise in one respect and give Jewel Carmen, his wife, the feminine lead. The company is not sailing before September so there is plenty of time to choose the cast.

I HAD thought that Samuel Goldwyn did not have a thought outside of "The Winning of Barbara Worth." Shows how mistaken I am in the way Mr. Goldwyn works. In other words, his is not a single track mind. He has been keeping Belle Bennett in his subconscious thought all the time, and when Frances Marion handed him an original story called "Chains" to read with a lead role for Belle Bennett he bought it without delay. Ronald Colman and Vilma Banky are likewise scheduled for leading roles with Henry King as director. From this you can see it will be some months before it is put into production.

Samuel Goldwyn

I SLAVED just learned that Famous Players-Lasky have in their collection of German films a version of "Manon Lescaut." Lya De Putti, who created such a sensation in "Variety," has the leading role, and while the advance reports do not in any way approach the enthusiasm surrounding "Variety," it will be interesting to see just what this actress does in the role that Dolores Costello will play in Jack Barrymore's version. It will be interesting to compare the German idea with the American idea.

Delores Costello

Just when Famous will release their picture I do not know, and Warners certainly will not release the Barrymore "Manon" for some weeks since "Don Juan" will open first.

THERE isn't a picture important enough to keep Tom Moore away from the vacation he has planned as soon as he finishes "Tin Pan Alley." I saw him at the Metropolitan studios where he is playing opposite Corinne Griffith.

Tom Moore.

"My daughter, Alice, is leaving New York on Sunday," he said, "to spend two months with me. I am taking her to Yellowstone Park on a fishing trip as well as on a visit to a ranch where she can ride horseback.

Alice Mary lives with her mother, Alice Joyce, part of the year, but Tom is privileged to have her every Summer. No one can talk to him five minutes without getting an idea what this means to him.

WOMEN FIGHT POWERFUL FOE
Struggle Against Ill Health
Find a Faithful Ally in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

MRS. ADOLPH HANSEN
HOLMQUIST, SOUTH DAKOTA

Holmquist, South Dakota.—"I can not begin to tell you how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was sick for about four years. I could not sleep, and I was always worrying, so one day we saw your advertisement in paper, and I made up my mind to Vegetable Compound. I bottle and did not see so I got another bottle. At the second bottle I began to feel better and I have used the Vegetable Compound ever since, whenever I feel badly. I recommend it and I will answer any letters asking about it."—Mrs. Adolph Hansen, Holmquist, South Dakota.

Could Work Only Two Hours

Encanto, Calif.—"I bless the day I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was so weak and tired all the time I could not work more than two hours each day, then had to go to bed for the rest of the day. I read so much about the Vegetable Compound and I was so weak that I decided to try it. I now do my own housework—washing, scrubbing, and ironing—and then help my husband with his garden. I do not have that worn-out feeling now. I advise every woman to give your wonderful medicine a trial, and I will answer any letters I receive from women asking about it."—Mrs. Stella Lay, 700 Jamacha Road, Encanto, Calif.

A woman who is fighting for her health and her family's happiness is a valiant soldier. She wages her battle in her own kitchen. She has no thrilling bugles to cheer her on, no waving banners.

If you are fighting this battle, let Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound be your ally, too.

MID-WEEK MOTOR NEWS

OVERLAND WHIPPET IMPRESSES MANY

BOSTON WELCOMES NEW COUPE

The above is one of the three whippet models, the first European patterned car of light construction to appear on the American market. It has four-wheel brakes and other latest improvements.

DODGE SEDAN IS POPULAR

The qualities of the new Dodge Brothers sedan is ascribed by dealers as an important factor in this year's volume of business—the largest in the history of the company. The all-steel body, is pointed out, continues in perennial favor, while roominess, safety, durability, and quietness are strong features.

The fact that the wheel base is a full 116 inches and that the engine has more rated power than other cars sold at higher prices is not so well-known dealers say.

"The sedan is the most exceptional value in closed cars that we have ever been able to offer," said C. B. Henshaw, president, Henshaw Motor Co., Boston dealers.

"All manufacturing and engineering practices that for eleven years made Dodge Brothers cars famous for dependability and long life have all gone into the designing and building of this sedan which is upholstered in genuine, blue Spanish leather and finished in the new lacquer that adds attractiveness of color.

"With its long wheel base, long underslung springs, deep and heavy frame, balloon tires and deep upholstering, it is a car remarkable for ease of riding and handling."

NEW OVERLAND WHIPPET OUT

Thousands of motorists thronged the salesrooms of all Metropolitan Boston dealers in Willys-Overland cars to see the initial showing of the new Overland Whippet. Visitors were impressed with the color scheme, chassis construction and body design and especially the price, according to Herbert G. Fitch, district manager.

There are three Whippet models, coupe, two-door sedan and touring car. It has four wheel brakes and all up-to-the-minute improvements and is the first European patterned car of light construction to make its appearance on the American market.

CHEVROLET IS BUILDING FAST

May production of Chevrolet motor cars shattered another monthly record. The Chevrolet Motor Company during the month produced 78,417, the largest single month's production in the history of the company.

Production for 1926, at the present rate, is expected to break all previous records and will total approximately 700,000 cars, according to W. C. Bills, president of the Bills—Chevrolet Company.

Another distinction achieved during May was the largest month's production of modern three-speed transmission cars by any manufacturer in the automobile industry.

"Our constant endeavor to improve our product, taking advantage of the most modern appliances known in the automobile industry, with never relaxing vigilance on maintenance of quality, is meeting with the sincere appreciation of the public," said W. S. Knudsen, president of the Chevrolet Motor Company.

"The $10,000,000 expansion program of the company, providing facilities for production of one million Chevrolet cars during 1927, is well under way at this time, with ground broken and building additions being made at Chevrolet plants throughout the country."

WORK BEGINS ON FACTORY

Construction of the new five million dollar Pontiac Six factory, a part of The huge Oakland expansion program just announced, is now under way. Contract for the work was let immediately after the expansion project was announced.

This project, according to A. J. Brandt, vice-president in charge of operations, will not only double the size of the present Oakland factories, but will also double the number of employes about the first of the year when the new plants will be ready for a production of 1,000 additional cars a day. This will bring Oakland production up among the four largest producers in the world.

Demand for the Pontiac Six still continued to keep ahead of the production ability of the Oakland factories each month, setting a new high volume record for any new make of car during its first year.

Frank G. Brown, general manager of the Oakland Company of New England, reports the addition of 20 new dealers for this territory. Approximately 300 persons each day are visiting the show rooms in Beacon street, to test their gaining ability in the second long run of the Pontiac coach.

CARDINAL O'CONNELL IS GUEST AT LENOX

Lenox, June 30.—Cardinal O'Connell and Mgr. M. J. Splaine of Boston, on their way home from the Eucharistic Congress in Chicago, registered at the Curtis Hotel. They will motor today for Boston.

TEST RECORD OF PEERLESS

Deliveries of the Peerless Six-80 model roadster are now being made. The roadster is declared by many motor car students to be among the most beautiful ever developed by American manufacturers. While the factory list price of the new car is $1,495, it combines the grace of design and distinctive appearance of its larger companion cars.

"In numerous tests made since its introduction last year, the Six-80 motor has proved itself not only thoroughly dependable and possessed of that flexibility and durability for which Peerless cars have always been famous, but wonderfully economical as well," said J. L. Snow, of the Peerless Company of Boston.

More than 20 miles to a gallon of gasoline have been obtained repeatedly in test runs without the employment of any trick driving stunts. A mileage of 21½ miles to the gallon through heavy Sunday traffic, was obtained in one case near San Francisco.

One of the outstanding feats of the Six-80 was performed in Washington when it climbed the 30th street hill in Georgetown on high.

STUTZ SEDAN IS WINNER

The Stutz safety chassis sedan won the closed car sweepstakes for economy of performance, traveled 14¾ miles per gallon of gasoline and displayed all around endurance in the Yosemite Economy or "Ridge Run" classic of the Pacific Coast.

The route of the run was laid out to test automobiles in their several price and power classes. From Los Angeles to Bakersfield over the winding roads of the Rockies, the route reached at times an altitude of 6400 feet above sea level.

Road clearance was demonstrated by many miles of rough rutted dirt road in the mountains toward the end of the run. The mountain slopes tested brakes while the long mountain climbs showed the cooling system to advantage.

Business Men Too Ardent Workers, Says Doctor

Philadelphia, June 30.—The American business man is shortening his life by lack of exercise, improper diet, and long hours of work.

This is the opinion of Dr. Milton J. Ralsbeck, New York, who so expressed it at the convention of the American Institute of Homeopathy.

To these causes he traced heart disease, high blood pressure, and other ills, which he characterized as degenerative diseases.

TIRE DEALERS DINE TONIGHT

The Boston Tire Dealers' Association will launch the project of bringing the 1927 convention of the National Tire Dealers' Association to Boston at an important general meeting of the local association at the Hotel Lexington tonight.

Affiliation with the national body will be discussed as the major question of the meeting. Several directors of the Boston association will attend the national convention at Memphis in November to centre attention on Boston as an ideal city for the gathering next year.

Charles T. Feigen, president and chairman of the board of directors in announcing the general meeting added that the operation of the new Credit Information Bureau and Tire Clearing House, both of benefit to tire dealers, would be outlined.

Virtually all tire dealers of Metropolitan Boston are members of the organization. The dinner is at 7.

Bellows Falls, Vt., June 30.—Victor J. Robey of Springfield, Vt., garage employe, was fined $25 here for driving an unlicensed car.

CUT DOWN BOND TAX EXEMPTION

Have you any little surtax hanging around on income tax payment day? If so, get rid of most of those Second, Third and Fourth Liberty 4¼ per cent. bonds before Friday, or be prepared to pay additional tax charges.

On and after July 1 holders of these bonds, subject to surtax, may only own $5,000 exempt from charge. Previously the exemption was $50,000. It is not expected the change will affect any great number of persons, for the shift was anticipated and most bondholders got rid of their excess.

FARRELL OUT OF OPEN TOURNEY

Sport Takes Back Seat
Religions Outdraw It
A Crowd of Half Million
Some Crowd Records
Some Sport Crowd Records

—By DAMON RUNYON—

I FEAR that no sporting crowd will ever again impress me of its size, at least, after having served as a reporter during the Eucharistic Congress in Chicago.

Damon Runyon

You need not be surprised if you read some future day under my signature that "a scattering of eighty thousand spectators saw the Yale-Harvard game this afternoon" or "a small gathering of ninety thousand was at the Dempsey-Tunney fight today."

The world of sport thought it was hanging up some records in the matter of attendance and was accepting this as a tribute to the popularity of sport. It has remained for religion to make the largest sport gatherings look small and on the same basis of reasoning that sport used, perhaps we can accept this as a tribute to the popularity of religion.

They had four crowds of from 125,000 to 200,000 each inside Soldiers Field during the Congress. There were as many more outside the field on each occasion, that is to say, within the immediate vicinity of the walls. These outside crowds represented the overflow.

SOLDIERS FIELD, by the way, is where the Army and Navy game is to be played, but, of course, they will not be able to accommodate a crowd anywhere near the size of the Eucharistic crowds at a football game.

On one occasion there were 62,000 school children seated on the playing field. The crowd that day was the smallest of any of the four meetings, because the attendance was restricted as a precautionary measure on account of the children.

I should say that they ought to get close to 100,000 in the stadium for the football game. It is easy of access, not far from Michigan Boulevard, and one of the finest stadiums in the land, though you couldn't say it is ideal for football purposes.

THE biggest crowd that ever saw a prize fight in this country was the crowd at the Willard-Firpo fight at Boyle's Thirty Acres, which is said to have been close to 90,000.

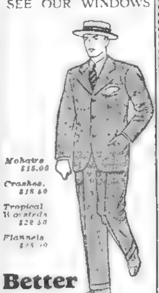

The popular supposition that the Dempsey-Carpentier attendance was "tops" is erroneous. That crowd was under 80,000. The Dempsey-Firpo fight at the Polo Grounds drew in the neighborhood of 80,000.

The biggest crowd that ever attended a baseball game must have been some one of the capacity crowds at the Yankee Stadium, which has a larger baseball capacity than any other. It is claimed that upwards of 60,000 have seen ball games there.

The Yale-Harvard game in the Yale Bowl, and sometimes the Yale-Princeton game generally draws capacity of slightly under 80,000.

Palfrey Sisters Take State Net Crowns

By FRED C. LANE

Miss Mianne Palfrey, seventeen-year-old tennis star, today won the State junior girls' tennis title on the Longwood Cricket Club courts, Chestnut Hill, by defeating Miss Marjorie Morrill, 6—2, 5—7 and 7—5. It was a great match, the game being tied four times, and Miss Palfrey only secured the title through her excellent serving and accurate placements, cutting in sharply over the net.

The gallery was thrilled during the third set which found both stars playing at their best.

In the girls' doubles, Miss Virginia Rice and Miss Barbara Frost advanced to the semi-final round by defeating the Misses Ruth Maze and Jacqueline Denston, 6—0, 6—4.

STARS TO TRY FOR SWIM LAURELS

The outdoor swimming season officially opens at the Charles River Basin on July 5, when the City of Boston stages its annual festival for aquatic fandom. Chairman William Cuddy has received 150 individual entries for the titular events.

The one mile championship for women and the 880 yard handicap race will feature the carnival. Entered in the one mile race is Delna Carlstrom of Worcester, Margaret McSheehy, Margaret Butler, Emma Lennon, Corine Dacey, Alice Norris and Margaret [illegible].

The winner of the 880 yard grind and the participants who is clocked in the second best time over the route will compete at the Rangeley Lakes on July 10.

Charles Rodeck, Gardner; Carl Tann and Frank G[illegible], Worcester Y. M. C. A.; Tom [illegible], Boston Swimming Association, and [illegible] Lynch from the [illegible] Club of Boston were among the early entrants posted.

The New England diving honors settles a dispute between Dave Browning, John Mac[illegible] and John Jasconis. The [illegible] are to be made off a 10 [illegible] board.

Jean McSheehy, Margaret Long, Ruth Brady and Margaret Harrop easily are the outstanding contestants in the 220 [illegible] championship events. Miss Harrop is favored to win, having too much speed for her able and experienced rivals.

$12,000 GIVEN IN MATHEWSON MEMORIAL

New York, June 30.—Close to $12,000 was subscribed to the Mathewson Memorial Fund at a meeting in City Hall presided over by Mayor James J. Walker.

The Mathewson Memorial is to be twofold, part of it being a clubhouse or headquarters for athletics, at Bucknell, to be used by the student body of Matty's alma mater and also by visiting athletes. The other part will be a clubhouse at Saranac where the popular athlete ended his days.

The National League contributed $1,000 to the fund, and each club in the league contributed $500 yesterday. The New York and Philadelphia clubs of the American League sent checks for $500. Checks for the same amount were received from Charles A. Stoneham, John J. McGraw and Judge F. X. McQuade of the Giants, from Harry M. Stevens, Charles A. Comiskey of the White Sox and from the National Association of Professional Baseball Clubs, generally known as the minor leagues.

The Washington Senators and the Giants will play a game on July 7 for the fund, and in case of rain the Yankees will postpone their game of July 8 to give the Matty memorial game an exclusived ate. A game of four or five innings between old-timers will precede the major league game.

KINSEY JOINS WIMBLEDON FINALISTS

By F. A. WRAY.

Wimbledon, England, June 30.—Howard Kinsey of California became a finalist in the men's singles of the Royal Wimbledon tournament today when he defeated Jacques Brugnon of France in the semi-finals, 6—4, 4—6, 6—3, 3—6, 9—7.

Henri Cochet, the young French star who eliminated Vincent Richards in the singles and Jean Borotra then took the courts for another semi-final match, the winner of which will meet Kinsey in the finals.

Cochet opened with his own service and piled up a lead of four to one chiefly because of Borotra's errors. The latter adopted the slicing tactics used by Kinsey in his match against Brugnon. Cochet allowed his opponent only one more game in this set, broke through his service for two love games and took the set 6—[illegible].

Borotra [illegible] in the second set, to win 7 to [illegible]. He broke through Cochet's service in the eleventh and took the final one on his own service. The "bounding basque" lived up to his nickname in this stanza, playing spectacularly at the net.

The same tactics were not so effective in the third set, which Cochet won 6—2. Cochet took an early lead and held it without trouble. His game in this set was marked by deadly accuracy.

COLLEGE HURLERS REPORT TO BALTIMORE CLUB

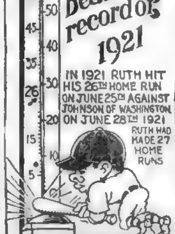

Two college pitchers reported to Baltimore last week, [illegible] Griffith of Villa Nova and [illegible] Lausser of Bucknell. Griffith signed with the Athletics and was [illegible] to Baltimore by Connie Mack. [illegible] is a find of [illegible] International League [illegible].

Millions are saying—"tasting better than ever"

WE are constantly striving to increase the value of White Owls. And so, in addition to the use of tobacco from the finest, sweetest-tasting crop in years, we are using the recent tax reduction to give you—

—the same outstanding White Owl value, but, now, at 3 for 20 cents.

SLIPPING SENATORS PIN HOPE ON WALTER JOHNSON

SOX HOPE TO CORRAL LAST TILT

Ruffing Due for Mound Duty in Finale of Series With League Champions

By NICK FLATLEY

THE famous Red Sox trade is beginning to win ball games for Bob Quinn. Bryan Harriss made his debut in the second Senator game, and ably assisted by Baby [illegible] Jacobson ran the Sox string of wins against the champs up to a [illegible]

Nick Flatley

[illegible] a startling [illegible] a wonderful improvement on what has been happening [illegible] enough to [illegible] looked like a pretty good machine against the league champs who had started a winning parade of their own before coming here.

Incidentally, the Senators have been terribly fouled in the stage and, it may be, knocked right out of the picture. Bucky Harris, considering the future, counted on victories continuously against the Sox. Dropping two in a row is like a snappy punch on the chin to a boxer who had just started to find himself in the middle of a tough scrap.

THE Senators have been able to [illegible] out something like eight hits in a couple of days here so you can figure for yourself that the Red Sox are producing good pitching. Wiltse on Monday and Harriss [illegible] were great. The slim [illegible] from the Athletics had his game pretty well in hand from the start. He had no margin to work on so he never had a chance to ease up.

Unlike most Boston pitchers of this sort [illegible] he had real control. He wasn't [illegible] the first runs on the bases by [illegible] He used a slow curve to great effect. The champs [illegible] him to death but he wasn't giving them [illegible] and their system [illegible]

A couple of very good plays came to the tail ender's rescue [illegible] every winning pitcher has to have some good fortune.

BIG JACORSON made two of those catches that keep the [illegible] He scored a short out from Muddy Ruel in the seventh [illegible] for the side. Lines just getting the [illegible] the onion by a double [illegible]

The inning before [illegible] robbed Joe Judge of a [illegible] by backing [illegible] the right field barrier [illegible] lengths [illegible] would have dropped [illegible] elevated [illegible] ing fair.

BRAVES AFTER SERIES EDGE

New York, June 30.—With a double victory under their cheats, the Braves feel a little better this morning [illegible] Joe Genewich ready to oppose the Giants in the final this afternoon, the Bostons hope to get away with the series, three games out of four.

Major credit for pulling the Braves out of their latest slump must go to Pitchers Jimmy Cooney and Harold Goldsmith, with no little help from "Doc" Gautreau.

The Giants got to Cooney for ten hits in the first game, but the lefthander was so effective in the [illegible] the McGrawites could [illegible] It was only Jimmy's sec[ond] [illegible] year and the [illegible] by a Brave [illegible]

DRIVERS TO GET CRUCIAL TEST

The one big query that is uppermost in the minds of everyone connected with the Rockingham Motor Speedway at Salem, N. H., at present, seems to be whether or not the track record of 128 miles per hour, set by little Pete DePaolo at the qualifying trials last October, will be shattered today and the three succeeding days of this week.

On these days the 27 drivers who [illegible] board track on next Monday [illegible] will be compelled to face Starter Fred Wagner and [illegible] their machines around the mile and one quarter of steep banked boarded ribbon at a rate of speed exceeding 120 miles per hour for the lap.

The belief is strong with these speed demons that the 128-mile an hour mark will be shattered, and that a new record for the mile and one-quarter lap will be set up.

THREE GAMES ON TONIGHT'S TWI CARD

By EDDIE DONDERO

Under the twilight sun three baseball engagements will be played tonight. Lynn probably will be dethroned for the first time this season as league leaders, and this causes deep concern in the ranks of the fans.

Eddie Dondero

Foremost among the hot struggles is the tussle between Cambridge and Dorchester at Dorchester Town Field. Manager Joe Kendrick has the Twi pennant within his grasp and a victory over the Cantabs would overtake the Lynnites for the leadership.

Firmly entrenched in third place is Frank Coughlin's Malden tribe which entertains Fore River at the Pearl Street Stadium. Recently he announced that McNamara and Shea of Boston College would join his roster. Today he said that they will not be signed to any Malden contracts.

Salem's pilgrim outfit, which spends most of its time in the basement, is pitted against Somerville at [illegible] Field. Danny McFadden or Ray Patten will do the laboring for Norton.

Louis Timson to Try Long Swim

Louis Timson, Lynn's long-distance swimming star, who will attempt to swim the English Channel on August 15, will try the difficult Nantasket to Swampscott swim next Monday, July 5.

Monday's event is sponsored by the Leon E. Abbott Post, American Legion, of which Timson is a member. The route starts at Point Allerton life-saving beach at 7:30 a. m. and includes the bad cross currents off Boston Ledge, Martin's Ledge, Graves Light, A whistling buoy, Eastern Point, Nahant and Egg Rock and terminates at Blaney's Beach, Swampscott.

Clymer Shuffles Lineup

Buffalo hasn't been hitting on all cylinders of late, so Bill Clymer shook up the lineup in hopes of better results. Andy Anderson went to third, Sam Crane back to short and Kid Taylor to centre. Taylor is a youngster found in the anthracite district of Pennsylvania and seems quite a prospect.

B.C. COACH ADVOCATES TWI BASEBALL FOR COLLEGES

IDEA BORN ON LEAGUE SUCCESSES

Jack Slattery Points to Advantage of Playing Games Late in the Afternoon

The germ of an idea which stands a fine chance of taking in college baseball circles has emanated from no less an authority on the national pastime than Jack Slattery, coach of the crack Boston College nine, during a visit to the sports department of the Boston Evening American.

"It would be a good thing for college baseball," said Slattery, "if they would adopt twilight ball games, and I think they will eventually come to it.

"There are several good reasons for doing so. In the first place, evening games would find the undergraduate body [illegible] free from classes which often keep them from witnessing their varsity teams in action.

"The same may be said of a large number of alumni, who at present, because of their business duties, are unable to get to games which start in the middle of the afternoon.

ATTENDANCE IS FACTOR.

"The resulting increase in attendance would be a fine thing not only from a pecuniary standpoint, but also in respect to the morale of the ball club, which is always spurred by a good cheering section.

"The success of evening baseball has been demonstrated by the Twilight League, which draws regular gates of from ten to twenty thousand people in Lynn and Dorchester. The only times at which college gates reach this figure are [illegible] and [illegible] crash.

The B. C. coach also [illegible] on the increasing importance of the Boston College-Holy Cross series, which is now one of the features of the baseball year.

"At the rate at which interest [illegible] is increasing," he remarked, "there will soon be need of finding even a larger scene of action than Fenway Park in order to take care of the demand for tickets.

"Even several years ago the B. C.-H. C. struggle competed successfully against the Braves and a Harvard-Princeton games, both of which occurred on the same day. The crowd was more interested in the [illegible] between the Catholic [illegible] than [illegible].

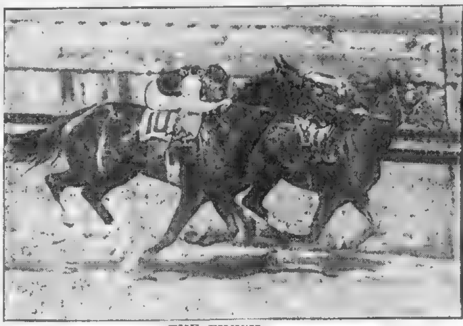

RIVALS LOOKS OUT WINDOW.

[illegible] have [illegible] amazing teams [illegible] recent years. Holy Cross has [illegible] driven the professional [illegible] from Worcester. And B. C. always, and still does, find it difficult to arrange games with the [illegible] prominent Eastern colleges [illegible] to this fact.

"The majority of the Eagles' overtures are met with the statement that B. C. is too strong; they all seem to want practice games.

There seems to be no strong argument against the idea of Twilight baseball for colleges. It would benefit the sport in many ways, especially those local institutions such as Boston College, whose great present need is increased support. The fans would undoubtedly welcome the opportunity to watch college teams in action at an hour which would be suitable to their conveniences.

LATZO MAKES GOOD IN FIRST DEFENSE

Newark, N. J., June 30 (A.P.)—Pete Latzo of Scranton, Pa., has made good in the first defense of his recently won welterweight title.

Willie Harmon of New York, a rugged, experienced ringman, who for some time has been rated high in the division, stood up against the former mine boy for less than five rounds here last night and then took the count for the first time in his life.

The challenger went down with both of Latzo's fists pummeling his head after he had essayed to meet the champion toe to toe. At that Harmon was driven to the grumble by the aggressive [illegible] of his opponent. There was no other way out. It was a solid right to the jaw that ended the fray.

Harmon was down in the opening round, but it was the result of a wild swing and he was on his feet immediately. In that round he managed to find the range for two stiff blows. That was the end of his fighting, however, with Latzo pressing forward in his puzzling crouch. In the rounds that followed Harmon was rocked several times and right handed uppercuts weakened him.

The result of this contest probably means that Latzo and Joe Dundee of Baltimore will meet in New York in August. Dundee having scored a technical knockout over Mickey Walker, from whom Latzo took the title in a bout at Madison Square Garden last week.

THOMPSON BECOMES IDOL IN INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE

Fresco Thompson, young second sacker obtained by Buffalo from Pittsburgh, is being highly touted in the International this season. Hitting and fielding finely and full of pep, Thompson is credited with being the spark plug of the Bisons in their rejuvenation.

DUNN PURCHASES ANOTHER SOUTHPAW FROM TOLEDO

Baltimore added a southpaw pitcher when Jack Dunn purchased Hugh Canavan from Toledo last week. Canavan arrived at the park June 16 just in time to save the game after two other hurlers had been knocked out by Rochester and the newcomer lost no time in hanging up his first victory.

JACOBS LOST TO READING WITH WRENCHED BACK

Southpaw Arthur Jacobs is lost to Reading. The former Mint Leaguer pitched only one game for the Keys and in that wrenched his back which had been injured earlier in the season. The injury necessitated his returning to his home for treatment.

STALLINGS SEEKS FIELDER FOR ROCHESTER NINE

George Stallings is seeking another good outfielder to work with Johnny Conlan and [illegible]. The Rochester leader isn't impressed by the showings made by [illegible] Quelich and Doc Silva when [illegible] regularly.

Hankins Looks Good

Strangler Says His Headlock Will Win

—By Strangler (Ed) Lewis—

I am ready to put up the battle of my life. I realize Joe Malcewicz is one of the world's greatest wrestlers [illegible] in our finish match for the world's heavyweight [illegible] at Braves Field tomorrow night.

I have not lost a decision on the mat in five years. The charge that I lost to Wayne (Big) Munn at Kansas City a year ago last January is untrue. When Munn went into court and attempted to force me to turn over my $1[illegible] diamond studded championship belt to him, the referee testified under oath that he had not declared Munn the winner of the match. The federal judge who heard the case decided in my favor. Since then I have beaten Munn three times.

Strangler Lewis

My championship belt will be at stake tomorrow night, but I am sure I shall be successful in defending it. I have trained harder for this match than for any in which I have engaged for several years. I consider Malcewicz the only real rival I have, and I know I shall have to be at my best to win. During the three weeks I have trained for this contest, I have taken off considerable weight. I realize I shall have to be fast in order to win.

I like to train. Even when I am not signed for a bout I wrestle three to four hours a day so that I am always in good condition.

I was born on September 30, 1892, at Nekoosa, Wis., which makes me 33 years of age. Wrestlers are at the peak of their [illegible] at 35 and so I am still improving, and not going back as some people would like [illegible] one to believe.

When I finished high school, I enrolled at the University of Kentucky at Lexington. It was while in college that I first met Billy Sandow, my manager. Sandow visited Lexington while piloting Doc Roller. We met and later I began wrestling under Sandow's management. It was Sandow who taught me the headlock. I have perfected this hold and it has won me great fame. I believe it will enable me to vanquish Malcewicz tomorrow night.

After I defeat Malcewicz, and I am certain I shall accomplish this result, I shall be prepared to tackle all-comers. Unlike some of our other champions, I have yet to dodge a legitimate challenger.

Malcewicz and Lewis Ready for Title Bout

By JACK CONWAY

STRANGLER LEWIS and Joe Malcewicz, who battle for the world's heavyweight wrestling championship at Braves Field tomorrow night under the direction of Paul Bowser, were to engage in only light workouts today.

The big fellows have been training for three weeks for the title contest and are now in razor edge condition. They are eagerly waiting for the bell which will send them into action in the title contest.

Jack Conway

There is tremendous interest in the meeting between Lewis and Malcewicz. Delegations of wrestling fans are arriving here from all parts of the United States. Numbered among the big wrestling cities who will have representatives at the ringside tomorrow night are Chicago, New York, Tulsa, Kansas City and Houston. There will be a party of [illegible] fans come here from Utica, N. Y., Malcewicz home town. They will back Joe with every penny they have.

BUDGET IS GREAT AID TO THRIFT

Boston Evening American Offers Aid to Housewives in Planning Expenditures of Income

BUDGET TALK NO. 89.
By MARTHA LEE.

YOU needn't wait until January 17 (Ben Franklin's birthday) to celebrate Thrift Week. Every week can be Thrift Week, and by the time the New Year rolls round, Budget can be one of the most helpful influences in your daily life.

He will be a good friend to the entire [illegible] real thrift [illegible] getting the most [illegible] ready [illegible] spends [illegible] Budget and the [illegible]

If there are [illegible] in the [illegible] the [illegible] the principles of budgeting. Often there is doubt both in the minds of the parents and children just how much the young man or woman beginning to earn should contribute to the home.

Unless parents know just what their own expenses are, they cannot tell just what would be a fair amount for the children to contribute. Here are some figures that have been found a very satisfactory basis for making a budget for business [illegible]. The amounts are figured by the month.

A budget for an $80 a month income should [illegible] the following [illegible] savings and life insurance $7, room and two meals $35, luncheons $9, laundry $3, clothing $15, advancement $11.

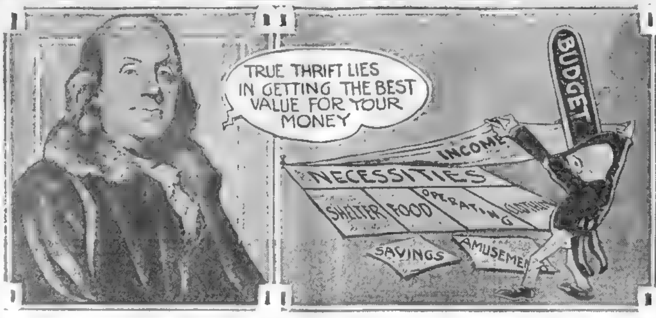

A $100 a month income for the business [illegible] Savings and life insurance $10, room and two meals $44, luncheons $9, laundry $4, clothing $13, personal $1[illegible].

If the salary is $125, these are the proper proportions: Savings and life insurance $20, room and two meals $50, luncheons $10, laundry $5, clothing $20, personal $20.

After a year or two the salary will increase but the percentage will remain the same. For $150 a month [illegible] savings and life insurance should be placed $30, room and two meals $58, luncheons $12, laundry $5, clothing $22, personal $25.

The $200 income will line up $45 for savings and life insurance, $65 for room and two meals, $15 for luncheons, $5 for laundry, $30 for clothing and $40 for personal. The $250 income is apportioned in this manner: Savings and life insurance $60, room and two meals $75, luncheons $18, laundry $7, clothing $40 and personal $50.

In using these figures, you must keep in mind that if conditions necessitate spending more on one item than this, the same amount must be pared from the other items to make up the deficit.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Mrs. L. M. P., who lives in New Hampshire, would like a budget for six in family, all adults, five being men. Rent $35 a month, income $42 weekly.

Uncle Sam allows 54c a day for a working man and 43c for a woman. This, in your family, would make $3.13 a day for hearty food or $21.91 a week. However, I am sure if you will make a study of the food question you can beat Uncle Sam's budget by at least $4. Try savings, including insurance, $4 weekly, shelter $7.50, including all business carfares, food $16, clothing $6, operating $4 and personal $4.50.

Mrs. L. R. I. asks for a $40 budget. Pays $48 rent, 3 in family. Gas bills are very high as she must heat her hot water with gas. Try shelter $12, food $15, clothing $9, operating $5, savings $6 and personal $9.

Mrs. E. V. G. has $30 a week. Three in family, including ten year old girl. Pays $3.50 weekly rent, insurance about $2.50, gas and electricity $1.25, coal and wood $1, girl's music lesson $1, laundry $1, butter and milk $2.

Try savings $3, including insurance, shelter $6.50, including rent and husband's business carfares, food $10, including milk and husband's lunches, clothing $4, covering all materials as well as ready made clothing, operating $4, covering gas and electricity, coal, wood and laundry, and personal $2.50 out of which comes all amusements, the music lessons, etc.

Mrs. C. H. M., a newlywed, asks how she should divide a monthly income of $125 in monthly allotments. I should suggest savings $20, food $30, shelter $30, clothing $18, operating $12, personal $15.

UNFULFILLMENT

SPEAKING a bit further on the subject of "old maids":

It seems to me that however we may be inclined (or forced) to ignore certain fundamental laws of nature, some regret, some feeling of the "non-accomplished" remains, goading us with the thought that we have not lived up to our normal possibilities.

Something in the old maid's bodily self, if not in her mind, will eternally regret that she left the "Fruit of Knowledge" untasted, with all its bitterness and sweetness.

Animals have no choice. Their wills do not function to "emancipate" them from fundamental impulses. They follow nature's dictates unresistingly and fit unquestioningly, uncomplainingly into the natural round and development of things, as does the seed, the fruit, the tree.

But the human will gives us the possibility of choice, of revolt. Man alone, within limits, can say I will or I will not—and nowadays many girls are using that free will to say I will not.

Woman has attained great liberty during and since the war. She is no longer dependent upon man's caprice. She has created her own position. Marriage is no longer her one and only object. She is no more looked down upon or "declasse" if she does not find a husband. Her married sisters sustain her instead of slightly despising her as in the days of our mothers and grandmothers. The expression "spinster" is almost obsolete, and with it the bitter, acid, spinster-attitude which made her an object of pity and sometimes of dread.

She has found other satisfactions, and so much to do, so many interests, that she need not turn sour or use her sharp tongue as a compensation or defense. The unmarried woman of today has a place in the world like the bachelor, and yet . . .

Have you read Anne Parrish's "The Perennial Bachelor" — a beautifully written, but deeply melancholy book. All through it one feels the cruel unnaturalness of remaining "unpaired," which is, after all, the fundamentally natural instinct of man and woman alike.

The "old maid" may defy the world and its laws, feel free, untrammeled, superior even; she may have her clubs, her work, her home, but at certain hours some regret must come to her; something within her must feel empty and unsatisfied. She will wonder if perhaps Nature had not after all meant something else for her, something more than what she has created for herself . . . as though she had stopped upon the outer edge of life instead of plunging into it, for better, for worse—

I may be wrong, but something within me feels like this—that there is something unfulfilled, something not lived up to, in the "old maid."

"Boston to Broadway," as Revealed by George M. Cohan Himself changed to suit my ideas, immediately.

"Georgie, I wish you wouldn't brag so much about the act," Josie said to me one day in a very kindly way. "You've got everybody talking about the way you carry on."

"Well, that's the idea. I want to keep them talking," I shot back.

"But they're not saying very nice things about you, George," she continued.

This handed me a laugh, and I came back with: "Listen, sis, between you and me, I don't care what they say about me, so long as they keep mentioning my name."

"I know, but don't you consider friendship at all?" she argued.

[illegible] If you don't believe me ask any of the old time variety managers.

While with the Harry Williams show (1898-99) I wrote another one-act play for the family, called "The Governor's Son." This skit I afterward made over into a three-act musical comedy, and it served as the first starring vehicle for the four Cohans.

The Hyde show wanted us again for the season of 1899-1900, but I sent word to Mr. Hyde that he hadn't money enough to hire us. Lou Behman sent for me and tried to patch matters up, as the Hyde and Behman offices were bent on having the act.

"Would you play under a personal contract with me?" he asked.

"Not with the Hyde show," I replied.

"Then how about organizing the 'Behman Show?'" he suggested.

After tossing the idea around in my mind for several seconds, I said.

"I'll tell you what we'll do, Mr. Behman. We'll sign with you personally for a vaudeville tour, if you'll agree to produce a musical comedy of mine and star the family the following season."

"That's a bet," answered Behman, and the deal was closed. A nominal salary and partnership arrangement.

The Behman Show, which was actually born out of an argument I'd had with Jim Hyde, turned out to be the most popular vaudeville combination [illegible] try for the following sixty odd weeks.

It was during this period that the Broadway managers first started to "flirt" with me for stage material. Klaw and Erlanger offered me a contract to do the first "Rogers Brothers" show. I told them I'd rather not tackle the job.

Weber and Fields sent for me to do burlesques for their Music Hall Company. I turned down the proposition, explaining to them that I didn't know enough about the burlesque game.

"I always compose my own music," I replied.

"Your own music, eh? That's what you call it, eh? Well, it's your own as far as I'm concerned. I don't want it." And he laughed me out of his office.

Roland Reed asked me to write an American comedy for his personal use. I said I'd rather wait a few years.

I was getting many a bite, but had no desire to land the big fish, not that I was afraid of falling down, exactly, as a matter of fact, I was thoroughly confident that I could have filled all of these orders to the perfect satisfaction of the public and everybody else concerned, but I was a wise enough kid to realize that I wasn't ready to do such important work as well as I felt it could be done with a little more experience.

The Making of a Husband

By Ann Lisle

"WHAT must I do? What can I do? I am all at sea. Is Ariette really his grandchild. Why didn't he tell me?"

"Ariette herself didn't know," I began, but Bertie Lingard broke in with a shrewd.

The bar sinister! That was what he intended telling me—what he was trying to ask me when—he went. That was what—[illegible] him. He was afraid of me."

"Yes. Afraid of my English traditions—of my family. He didn't marry Ariette's grandmother—did he? He wouldn't expect me to marry a girl who has no—legitimate family tree."

"And you wouldn't, of course," Jim said impatiently. "You're like Perry and all the rest of the wolves waiting to devour that poor, pretty little creature."

Bertie Lingard's fist doubled and started toward Jim's chin—but even as it dropped at his side again it came to me with a flash that Jim had named the ugly attitude with which men are wont to regard a girl of Ariette's family history. Does he regard her as the rest?

[illegible] into the matter for the officials who were to take matters in charge arrived just then. For some time they were ugly and surly, regarding us and all we said with suspicion. But suddenly the sheriff caught my name as the old housekeeper addressed me. And he leaned forward to ask courtly:

"Be you Mrs. Harrison?"

"Yes," I replied wondering what new turn things were taking.

"Mrs. Anne Harrison, wife of James?" he asked.

"That describes me," I answered.

"I am Sheriff McCandless," he said and waited.

"Yes, Sheriff," I murmured without seeing what importance there was to this going around in circles.

"I am witness to the will that makes you guardian to the little [illegible]"

A light dawned on me and grew in power as the Sheriff cleared the room of all save Jim, Bertie Lingard, the coroner and me. And as soon as the big, shabby yet cozy living room was cleared of most of those who had come to investigate Dr. Willis' death, Sheriff McCandless turned to the Coroner and explained curtly:

"Doc had a little sweetheart long ago afore he come here and married Nick Perry's ma. She were a poor little French Canadian gal he met when he were nothing but a lad. They were natural young critters and he come away without knowing he ought to of stayed and married this Berther. And when Rosine Va'eau come here to live and Doc were called to bring her [illegible] his old sweetheart and heard enough to know that Rosine were his daughter. But she had been brung up to hate him. Her maw had died when she come. And Rosine wouldn't hev nothing to do with Doc. May, she knew, but kept it all from Ariette, the little gal. [illegible] Ariette she [illegible] the spittin' image of her mother. Be that all clear?"

"Yes, Sheriff," said the Coroner rolling it over on his tongue like the juicy morsel of gossip it would appear to the wrong type of man.

"Keep it close," admonished the sheriff. "Miss Harrison she naterly knows, because when the old Doc drew his will last week and called me in to witness, like was right—seeing I was the only one of his neighbors [illegible] had [illegible] confidence—he done named Miss Harrison [illegible] what don't even know she has a grand dad."

The sheriff pushed back his horn-rim spectacles on his broad brow, swelled out his chest and teetered forward and back on heels and toes with evident pride in his position as confidant to the old doctor.

"Knowing that, Friend Simpson," he went on, the coroner, "You go on help your man determine just how Doc come by his death. And I'll bide here a while and see which of these folks had most to gain by getting the old doc out of the way. If anyone had a hand in pushing him up before the throne of grace an hour ahead of time, it will go hard with said criminal."

The sheriff glared from behind his spectacles. And suddenly I began to [illegible] Lingard to prove to the loyal old fanatic that his friend Doctor Jabez Willis had come to his death by natural causes.

GREETINGS, Everybody!

While the methods of celebrating [illegible] spent that day is in the out-of-doors. Whether it is a community celebration or a [illegible] the affair must include the whole family. The children are an important factor in the Fourth so in planning entertainment and refreshments, try to include something suitable for all ages.

The best time of day for getting the group together is late afternoon. Probably the real excuse for the gathering is the picnic supper and the fireworks that follow as soon as it is dark enough. But with daylight saving, there is plenty of time in between for a few games, perhaps pudding ball, played like baseball, only with a big soft pudding ball, men, women and children all batting in turn.

Relay races are always good fun and they move quickly enough not to be tiresome for even large groups. The smaller children can join in without spoiling the fun.

Form two teams lining up the members behind one another. The first person in line takes a flag which is stuck in the ground directly in front of him and runs with it to a goal, passes the flag and runs back to touch the next person in line, who in turn runs to get the flag and return it to the first goal.

The team which finishes first [illegible] in some simple [illegible] extra dish of ice [illegible] serve the [illegible]

The supper lunch is usually made up of cold dishes with iced tea, lemonade or perhaps hot coffee. But, of course, a fried chicken supper simply "can't be beat." Serve with the fried chicken whole tomatoes, buttered rolls, pickles, olives, coffee, ice cream and cake. Prune cake is a good choice, because it keeps moist, and yet is not too soft to handle easily.

Or you can save dishes by cutting long pointed rolls in half, making a slit in each half at the centre and inserting a spoonful of hot creamed chicken and a sprig of parsley.

This can be served on a paper plate, with a few olives or pickles, and eaten in the fingers very daintily. Punch, ice cream and cake and hot coffee will complete this easy-to-get and easy-to-serve repast.

PRUNE CAKE—One and one-half cups sugar, three eggs, one cup melted shortening, one cup sour milk, one teaspoon soda, one teaspoon cinnamon, one teaspoon nutmeg, 1 teaspoon allspice, one teaspoon baking powder, two cups flour, 1 cup chopped prunes (stewed and stoned).

Beat eggs with sugar thoroughly, add prunes and stir in alternately liquids (milk and melted Crisco), and sifted dry ingredients. Pour into three well-greased layer pans. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degree Fahrenheit, until firm. Ice with cocoa icing.

COLD MEAT MOLD—Two pounds of veal, one pound of salt pork, one small onion, one-quarter teaspoon of powdered sage, one-quarter teaspoon of pepper.

Select a shoulder cut of veal or any other lean portion preferred. Wash the salt pork, which should be well streaked with lean, and soak in cold water for an hour. Then cook it with the veal and onion sliced, in cold water to just cover. Remove the bones and chop the meat rather coarsely.

Meanwhile let the liquor boil down partially, for only two cupfuls will be needed. Skim off the fat and add the two cupfuls of the broth to the meat, together with the seasonings, pour into a wet mold and set away to stiffen overnight. Unmold and serve, garnished with lettuce and accompanied with a tart relish. Extra broth may be used as a foundation for soup.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

Fashions and Fancies

GOING Against the Grain—can never be said of grosgrain ribbon this season, for it is decidedly following, in every way, fashion's dictates. As trimming for dresses, as binding for light-weight flannel sport coats, on hats and in every conceivable way it is the rage. Latest development is the grosgrain bag, mounted on a metal gate top. This large, square, flat purse is equally smart in white or any of the favorite sport shades of the season.

The Naked Truth—is not always a very lovely thing to behold so probably that is why Paris is only appearing to sponsor unclad legs, but, in reality, is advising sheerest hose the exact shade of the wearer's complexion. So [illegible] these stockings be [illegible] the colorings of one's skin that they can barely be detected and [illegible] as the complexion tones.

CHAPTER XXXI.

SO shaken were my nerves by the crash in the house that my next consecutive thinking found me once more in the gun room, ready to beat a retreat. But here I managed somehow to pull myself together, and to return to my original errand in the house. Convinced that the slamming of the door would have aroused Mr. Bethel—if indeed anything were to rouse him again; and by this time, shaken as I was, I was prepared for the worst—the main staircase was not feasible.

I made my way, therefore, into the passage again to the servant's staircase and crept up it, one stair at a time, with the revolver clutched in my hand.

I had no idea how long all this took. Possibly ten minutes from the time I entered the house. Perhaps even more. I was subconsciously aware, I know, that it was too soon to look for Halliday's return, and in a way I was playing for time.

At the top of the kitchen staircase was a door, opening onto the main hall, and this I cautiously opened.

Save for the ticking of the tall clock on the staircase landing the house was entirely silent. The silence and the closed door gave me back my ebbing courage, and I advanced a step or two along the hall. Here I was close to Gordon's room and I felt for and tried the knob carefully. It was locked, and listening outside I could hear no movement from within. The relief I gathered from this was enormous, and although my position was still unpleasant enough, the fear of tragedy began to leave me.

There remained, I figured, merely to ascertain that Mr. Bethel's door was closed and locked, and I could beat a retreat which I felt was by no means ignominious. I made my way therefore to his door and tried it. It was fastened also, and I heard him move within; the heavy creak of his bed spring, no doubt as he lay uneasily awake, waiting for the boy's return.

I hesitated there, wondering whether to call to him and tell him he was not alone and helpless, or to retire, satisfied that he was awake and prepared for any trouble that might come. But there were no further sounds from beyond the door and I turned away and prepared to retrace my steps.

Sees Mystery Light

It was then that I became conscious of a light somewhere below. Not a light, rather, but where before had been absolute darkness there was something else; a faint illumination which outlined the staircase well and which was reddish in color.

(Note: It is worthy of consideration that when later on Halliday and I made an experiment with the red lamp, lighting it in the den and opening the door into the corridor, we secured much the same effect, save that in the experiment the resulting glow seemed stronger than the one recorded here.)

And I will swear that a figure was standing at the foot of the stairs apparently facing toward me and looking up. Or rather, not a figure, but a face: the light was so faint that no portions of the body were visible. I will swear that it moved, not toward the dining room and a possible exit by the window of the gun room, as Halliday suggests, but still upturned toward the library, and that within a foot or two of that door it disappeared.

I will swear that red glow persisted for a moment or so after the disappeared and then slowly faded away. And I will also swear that I had no more intention of firing my revolver at that figure than I had of leaping down the staircase after it. Mr Greenough would have done no less in my situation, and might very possibly have done considerably more. The first knowledge that I had pulled the trigger came with the sound of the shot itself. I was certainly not aiming at the figure. If Mr. Greenough examines the mark left by the bullet, he will find, as Halliday and I did, that my bullet went almost directly down and is embedded in the baseboard of the hall, near the den door.

As a matter of fact the whole sequence of events, ending with the shot, had stunned me. I heard Mr Bethel in his room, calling out and someone outside shouting from the terrace. Almost immediately there was a crash of breaking glass in the library, as Halliday smashed a window with a porch chair, and the next moment was in the house and fumbling for the light switch inside the library door.

When he ran into the hall I told him what had happened, and he immediately set about his search. As Mr. Bethel was still demanding, beyond his door, to know what was wrong, I went back to reassure him, but it required some time to induce him to unlock the door. Thus it was Halliday who made the first investigation downstairs.

A Spirit Visit?

He is confident no one escaped from the library unless in the brief time while he was feeling for a light. But it is to be remembered that the floor near the window was covered with broken glass, no escape by that method could have been noiseless. At the same time, any theory of departure by the windows of the den is impossible, since we found all these windows closed and locked on the inside.

I am convinced that the intruder was not the secretary. As a matter of fact, he drove in a half hour later, saw the lights in the house and hammered for admission, and surveyed our group in the hall with an amazement which, under any other circumstances, would be humorous. And I am also convinced that it was not the doctor. Mr Bethel showing signs of collapse, Halliday telephoned to Hayward. He replied at once. Had he been at the house that night, he could not have made it.

I have no explanation whatever of the fact that Halliday and Hayward later on found the gun room window closed and locked, save that the intruder may have entered by it while I was working my way into the dining room and that the cold air, the crash at the table, and the bursting open of the door in the hall which so alarmed me, may have marked his passage through the room.

At the same time no statement of the situation that night should fail to point out, loath as I am to believe in the supernatural, that for many years this house has had a reputation for similar phenomena; the bursting open of the door and the cold wind are merely repetitions of many similar unexplained occurrences. So also is the reddish color of the light I saw.

The disappearance of the figure and the blank darkness which followed that disappearance are difficult to account for, under any natural law at present known. I am not a spiritist, but it is to be remembered that only a second or so elapsed between Mr Halliday's entrance by the broken window and his turning on of the lights.

Neither he nor I heard in that interval any movement, yet an escape over the broken glass of the window would certainly have made some sound. As I have said, the windows in the den were found to be closed and locked on the inside.

(End of memorandum for Mr. Greenough.)

Detective Calls

August 15th.

Up today, but not allowed out of my room. Jock spends most of his time with me, whether from devotion or interest in the appetizing trays Jane sends up, I am slightly uncertain.

Edith suspects the latter, and has taken to calling him old dog Tray. She reproaches me bitterly for my faculty of getting myself into difficult situations.

In preparation for the detective's visit she has laid out my best silk pajamas, and her reason for doing so sounds like her.

But it shows her strength and my weakness, that I am now wearing them . . .

Greenough has come and gone. What he thinks of things now I cannot say, but at least I am, as I have had occasion more than once to record here, at liberty. The fact that the revolver I used was Halliday's, and Halliday's supporting statement no doubt are in my favor.

At the same time it is clear that although he listened carefully to my preliminary statement relative to our suspicions against Gordon he was not greatly impressed by it.

"How did you and Mr Halliday reconcile that theory with the boy sleeping?" he asked, when I had finished. "He wasn't here, then, was he?"

"No, that has puzzled us, of course."

"Then again," he went on, eying me, "he himself was knocked down and tied. I don't suppose you accuse him of that, too?"

I've told you," I said impatiently, "that we haven't a case; it's a theory. That's all. Take for instance that rope."

"Oh come now, Mr. Porter! I've slipped out of my room at night over a wood-shed; so have you, probably."

When Miss Sixteen Loves in Vain -:- By Beatrice Fairfax

Waiting for Him to Call — "I'm Popular at Parties" — He Scarcely Knows She's Alive — Enjoy His Companionship

OLDER people often think of youth as care-free. They seemingly forget, in looking back, the keen sorrows of youth.

At sixteen life presents a picture in sharp contrasts—tense joy and blank despair.

"Dear Miss Fairfax," writes Nora. "I am only sixteen. My life seems broken up by an unreturned love. I have been in love with a wonderful young man for nearly a year. Though he likes me very much, he doesn't love me.

"I would lay down my life for him, I love him so much. If you only knew how my heart aches when I wait for him to call up.

"I go with other young men to forget him but I can't. He has always respected me even when I allowed him to pet with me.

"It seems that since I have stopped petting, he doesn't care for me as much as he used to, and I stopped it just to make him love me more.

"[illegible] do anything? Aren't there any little tricks that will help me to win his love?

"Please try to do something for me. I haven't had a happy day for so long that I don't know what it's like. NORA."

Dear Nora, I'm sorry you are so [illegible]. There aren't any love [illegible] or tricks by means of which [illegible] force folks to love us. And after all, love that wasn't freely given wouldn't amount to so much, would it?

In a few years you will wonder whatever you saw in this young man that made him seem so wonderful and "different." When a girl is growing up her tastes and ideas change so rapidly that she is likely to fall in love and out again several times before she is [illegible].

Then one day when she's fully grown [illegible] way of looking at life and [illegible] likely to change her mind, a young man comes along who's the best pal in the world. First she likes him, then she falls in love [illegible] his heart and finally [illegible] that he is Mr. Right [illegible].

At sixteen it seems as though a girl almost always manages to fall in love with a young man who does [illegible] because [illegible] in [illegible], but with love.

I suggest that you go right on being [illegible] best [illegible] the young man you [illegible] friendliness. [illegible] when he [illegible] if your parents [illegible] grow better friends [illegible] to the extent that you're [illegible].

the woman's face. She became all business.

For $10 a week she wanted Merry to answer the telephone and act as saleswoman for the cosmetics that filled the glass case at one end of the room.

"It's easy work," said the woman, "especially in the Summer months when everybody's out of town. "In the Winter I always hire another girl to help out."

Merry wondered if Mme. Dale—that was her business name—called herself a girl.

"She looks as old as the hills to me," she said to herself, "and her skin's like white leather. I wonder if that's what so much paint and powder does to complexions."

In the mirror on the opposite wall her own reflection struck her as being wonderfully soft and satiny and fresh compared to Mme. Dale's mask of cosmetics.

She took the job.

Never afterward could she explain to herself just how she happened to take it. Sometimes she thought that it was because the day was so hot and she hated the thought of going on in the broiling heat to hunt some other kind of work.

"You got a lovely skin of your own," Madame Dale told her in her cheerful, ungrammatical way, "but as long as you're working in a beauty shop, I think you might as well fix up a little bit. It'll help sell this stuff." She waved a fat over-manicured hand toward the varicolored bottles and boxes in the glass case.

It was no trick for Merry to sell beauty aids—not with skin and hair like hers.

And when Madame Dale had darkened her eyelashes just the least bit with brown mascara, and reddened her Cupid's bow mouth, and touched her smooth cheeks with rouge, Merry looked like a masterpiece of make-up.

"I can tell we're going to get along real good—you and me," she said, smiling all around her fat nose when they were closing up the shop at half past five. "It takes looks like yours to get by in a beauty parlor and I don't mean yesterday."

She was cheerful and appreciative. And in spite of her slang and her bad grammar and her wild appearance, Merry liked her.

"Where did you find a position?" Cassie asked that night when she and Merry were upstairs freshening themselves up for supper.

"It's not a position, it's only a job, and not much of a job at that," Merry told her. "It's in a beauty shop. I answer the telephone and do little odd jobs like that around the place."

Cassie's eyes widened. "So that explains why you're all painted up like a [illegible] poster," she said. "Just wait until your friend, Gaines, sees you. He'll have a fit."

Merry knew that he would.

Something that he had said about paint and powder the other night flashed through her mind now. "My mother's sure to like you because you don't paint or drink or smoke," was what he had said.

"Well, I'm painted now!" Merry thought rebelliously, as she started downstairs, "so if she doesn't like it she's out of luck!"

Before she reached the bottom of the stairs the telephone in the lower hall began to ring. She answered it.

"Hello. How's my sweetheart?" Tony's voice came to her, and she caught her breath. It seemed to bring him close to her, somehow.

"All right," she answered in a dull tone. "I started work today so I'm a little tired."

Tony Telephones

"I'd like to come over to see you tonight, anyway," he said after a pause, "unless you're too tired."

She answered that she wasn't too tired to see him, and hung up.

Cassie, wrapped in a thin white breakfast coat, was coming down the stairs.

Merry nodded. "He's coming over."

Cassie's eyebrows went up in mock surprise. "Did he say anything about bringing his mother with him—or about taking you to see her?" she asked, and Merry silently shook her fluffy head.

"No, I guess not," Cassie went on. "He hasn't shown any signs of giving you an engagement ring either, Merry. [illegible] mean business! He's just having a good time with you. If he intended to marry you he'd have bought you a ring ages ago. He has [illegible] wads of money, so Morey Kaufman says."

All during the silent meal Merry kept turning what Cassie had said over and over in her troubled mind.

Until then she hadn't even thought of an engagement ring. But now she wondered why Tony hadn't given her one. She wondered why Tony hadn't told his mother about her too.

"I'll have it all out with him tonight," she made up her mind stubbornly. "I'll tell him that he can marry me right now or he doesn't need to marry me at all. I'm not going to spend the Summer in a broiling beauty shop waiting for him to shop for a marriage license."

The more she thought things over the more angry and resentful she became.

She was so busy with her own dark thoughts that she lent only half an ear to Moms' tirade about her new work at Mme. Dale's shop.

"Answering a phone in a beauty shop. You who should be making two or three times that much as a stenographer," groaned Moms. "Is that what I've educated you for all these years, I'd like to know, so that you can paint yourself up like a trollop and make appointments for a beauty shop?" She burst into a flood of bitter, discouraged tears and Merry rushed out of the dining room and out onto the front porch.

As she sat in the hammock couch waiting for Tony to come, she took out her new lipstick and eyebrow pencil and went to work.

"If I'm going to look painted I may as well look good and painted," she said to herself, with an angry little shake of her whole slim body.

At 7:30 Tony Gaines' big blue car came rolling down Mystic street, followed by the interested eyes of all the neighbors who were sitting out on their verandas to enjoy the evening air and quiet.

Any car that stopped before the Locke house was an object of curiosity in the neighborhood. The Locke girls, and their beaus, kept the whole street on tiptoe.

Merry sat perfectly still in the swing and waited for Tony to come to her. There was a certain little feeling of satisfaction in her face as she saw his eyes sweep over it.

"What have you done to yourself?" he asked frowning. "You don't look like yourself at all, Merry. I was going to bring my mother to see you tonight, but now I'm glad I didn't. I don't want her to see you when you look like this."

(TO BE CONTINUED)

Merry goes to meet Tony Gaines' mother. Tony gives Merry an engagement ring, but—you'll find out more about Merry and Tony's courtship in the next chapter.

MEDBURY SAYS---

By John P. Medbury

SAY not, oh my daughter, that man hath lost all his mastery over woman and that woman hath lost all her mystery for man.

For, behold, what filleth a woman with more RESPECT than the way in which a man tieth up a bundle with a slip-knot? And what filleth a man with greater awe than the way in which a woman threadeth a needle and [illegible] on a [illegible]?

Nay, what so impresseth a woman with man's higher ingenuity as the way in which he putteth on a new tire and persuadeth an engine to "GO"?

And what so [illegible] a man with wonder as the way [illegible] an filleth a [illegible] and persuadeth the berries to "jell"?

What so exciteth a woman's admiration as the way in which a man sharpeneth a [illegible] maketh a fountain pen to [illegible] and [illegible]eth up his trousers with a BELT?

And what [illegible] a man to marvel as the way in which a woman getteth into an evening gown and holdeth it UP by sheer imagination and will power?

Go to. What so inspireth a woman with astonishment as the way in which a man translateth a railway time table?

What so filleth a woman with reverence as the way in which a man juggleth with an engine or [illegible]

And what [illegible] a man to [illegible] a cake and [illegible] a gas-oven without scorching her fingers?

What so dazzleth a woman as the [illegible] in August?

And what so [illegible] a man as the [illegible] of January [illegible]

Verily [illegible] the beauty of [illegible] which [illegible] the one [illegible] hath made them DIFFERENTLY.

DAILY SHORT STORY

THE SIGN OF SANCTITY

By LOUIS ARTHUR CUNNINGHAM

BERNARD FARNSWORTH looked out from the window of his office upon the stream of work[illegible] a river of life that passed at [illegible]. Things they had always seemed to him, little [illegible] that worked for him, each one carrying a few dollars to the huge pile the Farnsworth Company had accumulated, each taking away a few cents for its own sustenance.

[illegible] of these things these [illegible] was going to marry Rob. A Farnsworth was about to take a millhand for a wife. Bernard Farnsworth crumpled a letter [illegible] into a ball and flung it out among the throng who passed. His stern, embittered face had a relentless look. Rob was only his nephew, but he had treated Rob as a son. Rob must not make a fool of himself and the man who had been a father to him. Marry a girl who [illegible] some lowly place in the great knitting shops, take her from [illegible] and bring her to ease and luxury! It could not be. Why marry her at all? Bernard Farnsworth knew that many of the mill girls had luxury . . . for a while; but few had luxury and marriage both. They were content with one or other. He himself, in his youth, had given luxury to one—until he wearied of her and told her he wanted no more of her that [illegible] paid for well and [illegible] complaint.

Ruth Halliday had loved him, he knew. Ruth would have loved him even if he did not have wealth to spend upon her. [illegible] tangled with [illegible] who worked for him. She had [illegible] he had paid that was [illegible] for he heard no more about her.

But [illegible] when he loved as dearly as if the boy were his own . . . Rob intended to marry a girl from the mill, Eileen Bond, a girl whose name Bernard Farnsworth [illegible] on the register of employees with twelve [illegible] ten [illegible] twelve [illegible] a week [illegible] Rob [illegible] the millions [illegible] It was preposterous. He had other plans for Rob. The boy must marry one of his own class, some patrician, exquisite woman, fit for one who bore the name of Farnsworth. He would stop Roy's madness.

As he turned from the window [illegible] the last of his workers had straggled by [illegible] entered the office.

He was a lively, dark-eyed boy. His face was as keen as his uncle's but it had none of the old man's hardness. Only an hour ago the two had quarreled over Rob's design to marry. Now Bernard spoke first.

"The more I think of this proposed wedding of yours, Rob, the less I care about it. You will get tired of this girl after a few weeks. Her common ways . . . the ways of the millfolk . . . will pall upon you, irritate you, drive you crazy. You will damn yourself for a fool. You will condemn her to misery. If you want a wife take some girl from among your friends, the Pickards, the Daws. There are [illegible] to choose from."

"I have known many of them," returned Rob. "But in Eileen I have found more than I ever could see in them. She is all that I could ask. Her ways are not common. She is worthy of a better man than I could ever be. I bestow no honor upon her; it is she who honors me. I begged her to be my wife. Her consent was reluctant, given only on condition that you would approve of our marriage."

Bernard Farnsworth laughed unpleasantly.

"I will never approve of it; so let her withdraw her consent. If you persist in this folly, you will get nothing from me. If you act sensibly you shall have everything. My time will not be long."

"Do you think your wealth could make up for the loss of Eileen's love? It could not. For her I would refuse the last dollar upon the earth. We are going to be wed."

"But I do not approve. You said. . . ."

"I shall tell her your approval depends upon the dollars and cents of the woman I wish to marry. Eileen will understand. Nothing shall keep me from her."

"You are a fool, Rob. And if this girl has any sense, she will see that nothing can come from it. Where can you take her? Who will receive her?"

"With the name of Farnsworth, she may go far," said Rob. "She shall be my wife. Where I go, she can go too."

That evening Bernard Farnsworth left Rob hard at work in the office. The old man had decided to go to the girl and try to put into her head the sense he had failed to hammer into his nephew's. He would buy her off, he decided. He would give her money to pack up and go away.

The address in the register corresponded to that of a pretty little house on the outskirts of the town where the smoke-drags from the Farnsworth chimneys did not pollute the air with their blackness.

The girl herself Farnsworth had to admit she was lovely . . . opened the door for him. Without the shyness and fear he had learned to expect from his workers, she asked him in.

He sat down, more ill at ease than Eileen.

"You are going to marry my nephew?" he asked clumsily. Why did he find it so hard to talk to her—a girl who made twelve dollars weekly, of his money? Her calm dark eyes daunted him.

"He has asked me," she answered. "I have practically consented." She spoke like a princess giving herself to a subject of only middle rank. Bernard Farnsworth could say none of the things he had planned. At last with an effort he muttered:

"Do you think you are good enough for Rob Farnsworth . . . for my nephew? You are only a pauper, a mill girl . . ."

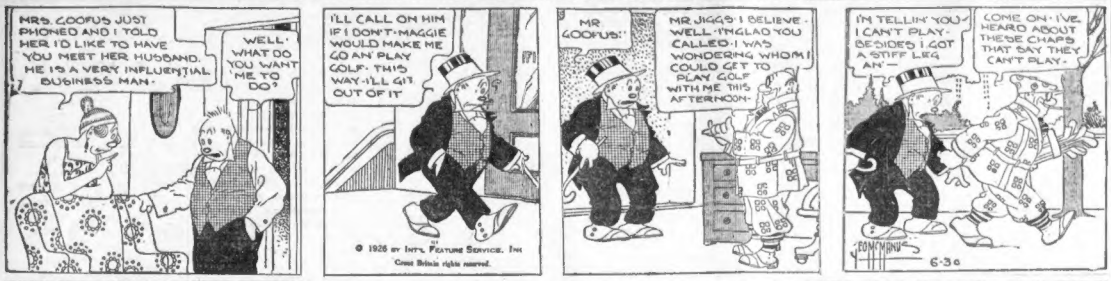

"So was my mother," said Eileen coldly. "But she was good enough for a Farnsworth. Mrs. Bond is only my foster mother. Am I good enough for an adopted son of yours? These people thought me good enough to take me when my own mother died. Good enough? Yes, a thousand times yes. There is a cross, a birthmark, a sign of sanctity upon my breast. Do you know from whom I got it? Ruth Halliday was my mother, but the cross did not come from her. Look on your own body, my father."

Bernard Farnsworth did not need to look. He knew the mark. Yes, she was good enough.

FOXY GRANDPA'S INTERESTING BEDTIME STORY

By Foxy Grandpa

"FOXY GRANDPA," cried Bobby F, running up the garden path, "do come down and see the beautiful rose which has bloomed on that new bush you planted in the Spring."

I got up from my chair and followed Bobby down to the foot of the garden, and there was the lovely red rose which was the first to blossom on my bush. It was of the most gorgeous color, and it held its head proudly on its strong stem.

"Isn't it beautiful?" I said. "I've never seen a finer rose. I'll get some more bushes like that next Spring. But look at the big thorns on it," exclaimed Bobby touching the needle-like point of a sharp thorn with the end of his little fingers.

"That's to guard the rose," I explained. "I wonder if I could remember the story of the rose," I murmured.

At this Bobby quickly led me back to the front porch, sat down and waited for me to begin.

"This all happened," said I, "thousands of years ago in the city of Corinth."

"That's in Greece, isn't it, Foxy Grandpa?" asked the boy.

"You're right," I answered.

"Then I hope it's about a god."

"A goddess, this time, Bobby," I laughed.

"Please go on, Foxy Grandpa," urged Bobby.

"Let me see," I continued.

"In the city of Corinth there lived a beautiful lady by the name Rhodanthe—in fact she was one of the most beautiful ladies in all of Greece.

"So lovely was Rhodanthe that all the kings and princes and lords from far and near came for miles to beg Rhodanthe to marry them.

"But Rhodanthe didn't want to be married, and all of these suitors worried her. She didn't know what to do, but finally she had an idea.

"Rhodanthe determined to escape from this throng of admirers, and she fled for refuge to the temple of the goddess of Purity, Artemis.

"There she thought she would surely be safe from the entreaties of these princes and kings who wanted to marry her.

"But it wasn't as Rhodanthe thought, because when her lovers heard this, they followed her into the temple.

"They began breaking down the doors and the people of Corinth helped them do this.

"Artemis, the goddess, was incensed at this outrage. She was furious to think that kings and princes should act in such an uncivilized way, and she was disgusted with the people of Corinth.

"But what do you think the goddess Artemis did?"

"Looked her up in a closet!" asked Bobby.

"No," I replied. "She put Rhodanthe further away from their reach than that. Artemis changed Rhodanthe into a red rose. They say that the rose is still a deep red, and that it is red because it is the blush which spread on Rhodanthe's cheeks when all of her admirers pursued her."

"They couldn't catch her, then," laughed Bobby.

"Indeed they couldn't," I agreed. "But Artemis didn't stop changing people."

"What else did she do?" asked Bobby promptly.

"So infuriated was she at the rough men who had broken into the temple that she changed them into thorns. Those thorns you now find on every rose."

"No wonder they're ugly and sharp—those thorns," remarked Bobby. "I always thought it was funny that such a beautiful thing as a rose had to have those things growing on it.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By Helen Rowland

ABSENCE is no test of love—because it isn't a man's absence you've got to stand after marriage—it's his eternal PRESENCE!

There is always one woman in a man's life who teaches him the tender little arts which he practices on all the other women.

Somehow, having a man try to be "chummy" with her, instead of sentimental, always gives a girl an "inferiority complex" which lasts until the next man tells her he loves her.

When a man succeeds in parking his car without touching another man's fender, it is usually good management; but when a woman does it, she knows it's the hand of Heaven.

If a man has a good profile and a girl has a cute "line" or a dimple, it takes only an evening or two in the moonlight, for them to persuade themselves that they are mentally and spiritually "mated."

* * *

A woman's face wears the same cryptic expression when her husband tries to alibi himself after a little sentimental defection, as the store clerks wear when a woman tries to "explain" the hole in her stocking.

Why will a man always insist on speeding cheerfully past all the women who give him the "Stop" signal and would die to make him happy—and then obstinately try to park his heart where it isn't wanted?

* * *

Somehow, a woman can always "sense" when her husband's stenographer has ceased to be her ally in misery, and has started in trying to "understand" her "Boss."

* * *

"Beware the Greeks most when they offer gifts"—and a woman most when she offers to be your "little platonic pal."

RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

SOMEWHERE tonight this argent moonlight creeps across a sea that whispers as it sleeps. What though my body lies in bondage here, far off, my soul with winds and waters leap! I can forget, in this enchanted light, in these cool rays that lie serenely bright across the shadowed, hushed and dreaming world, all that might mar the magic spell of night. Somewhere tonight the silver moonlight falls upon an ancient city's ruined walls, girt round about with desert silences and broken only by the sea-wind's calls. Yet, though I never leave my working place to rove where steppe-lands lie or torrents race, I can forget my narrow boundaries in utter joy of moonlight's white embrace. Somewhere tonight this pallid moonlight lies where dark seas wash and snow-crowned mountains rise, and when along my windowsill it creeps it brings their beauty to my happy eyes.

'You Said It, Marceline!'

By MARCELINE D'ALROY

SOME PEOPLE seem SURPRISED when they
SELDOM LOOK like
WHAT they WRITE.
They THINK women
Who write LURID
LOVE STORIES, in which
They have ALL the Men they WISH
At their FEET,
Are writing of THEIR OWN EXPERIENCES.
They think MEN who Are HUMORISTS are REALLY entertaining
In their WIVES and FAMILIES, and they BELIEVE that CLEVER PEOPLE are NEVER DULL.
It happens, OF COURSE,
That SOME SNAPPY
Writers LOOK snappy,
And some ARE snappy,
But why should it
Be EXPECTED?
If ARTISTS only painted
Their OWN portraits
The world would soon DIE
Of acute
INDIGESTION!

To Restore "Dead" Tubes

A bell-ringing transformer will be handy for reactivating tubes that have become "paralyzed" through excessive filament voltage. The low-voltage side of the transformer should be connected to a socket and the tube given several "flashes" the tube given several "flashes" ing" should be done with the "B" battery disconnected.

To Tune a Fixed Coil

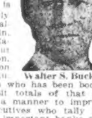

There are two ways of tuning a fixed coil, either by using a variable condenser or a variometer. The variable condenser may be used either in series or in parallel, while the variometer is always used in series.

STOCK MARKET IS CALLED POLITICAL

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor.

The "grapevine telegraph" was never livelier than in these days. Talk a while with the average trader on State street and you are apt to hear that this is a "political market" with rising prices and their basic causes planned to insure the election of Coolidge men in the next Congress. It sounds plausible, if not probable. Big business and politics are probably much less closely connected than most of us imagine.

Walter S. Bucklin

One of the infrequent out-of-town visitors to the New York banking district but one who is always eagerly welcomed is Walter S. Bucklin, head of the National Shawmut Bank of Boston, says the Boston News Bureau. He is the man who has been boosting the deposit totals of that old institution in a manner to impress the blase executives who tally the growth of the important banks outside of the metropolis. Bucklin took hold of the Shawmut in 1923 with $132,000,000 deposits and in spite of wretched New England business conditions has in less than three years built it up to its present deposit total of $182,000,000, a gain of a cool $50,000,000.

Bostonians "in the know" will tell you that he has had no easy row to hoe. When he took hold there there was internal friction arising from the usual heritage of post-deflation bank problems. That took some time ironing out. Then there was a certain impatience in a section of the directorate to pass judgment upon him because he was only 443 and fresh to the banking field from the insurance business. But he had courage, great personal charm and magnetism and he is a born executive-expansionist. Night and day he stuck to the job, gathering about him the veteran executives and some new ones of his own choice. The big accounts of the Shawmut stuck and new ones came in. Only lately has he relaxed in the least from his strenuous efforts and then only to rest a little at his New London, N. H., farm.

Vice-President H. P. Tilden of the United States Trust Co. informs me that at a meeting of the board of directors a regular semi-annual dividend of 12 per cent. was declared payable July 1, 1926, to stockholders of record June 29, 1926.

A continuous succession of events transpires to bear out our oft repeated declaration that the port of Boston is far from being at a standstill. The latest report of Tidewater Terminal, Inc., which is operating Army Base at Boston under five-year lease, shows an increase of 221,650 tons and 209 vessels for past two years over the preceding two years, and is accepted in maritime circles as indicating continued expansion of business of port of Boston. Officials of the company state that the past few months have witnessed greater increments in imports than in any similar period last year and expect uninterrupted expansion with consequent betterment of New England industrial conditions.

Harry H. Ham, brother of the late Guy A. Ham, has been elected president of the Citizens National Bank, succeeding his deceased brother.

Boston News Bureau says: "Not one newspaper has mentioned the probable retirement in ten days of Judge Gary from U. S. Steel." The writer of this statement, in New York, has perhaps by this time received his copy of Tuesday's Boston Evening American, in which this column was largely devoted to Judge Gary's impending retirement.

Don't Forget His Mother

She Gave Him His Character and Strength

This young man, first human being that ever flew over the North Pole, is honored as he should be. Everybody told the young man that his country was proud of him. It is proud of him and fortunately tens of thousands of young Americans are ready and willing to do ANY TIME what young Byrd did.

BUT DON'T FORGET HIS MOTHER.

Her ... with her son, you see the mother that gave ... to his country.

As you notice the mother's gentle face don't overlook the strong chin. The son INHERITED that, and with it his determination. The courage that carried him through the Arctic and over the North Pole came to him from his mother's heart during the long months that he spent, so close to that heart, before this world saw him.

Whatever a man does for his country, for science, for religion—all good work, the MOTHER REALLY DOES. Her son's work is HER work. Don't forget the MOTHERS when you honor their sons.

"Mum's ... the Word!"

SOME M... ...vers Talk Too Much

... drivers of these big vehicles insist upon holding ... roadway and driving others into the gutters."

His Honor plainly speaks, and speaks plainly, as one who has met a bus, or busses, coming from the opposite direction.

The testimony of ons who occasionally has traveled IN the busses may be of interest, more particularly to the owners.

One of the things missing from these coaches is the sign, so familiar to patrons of the trolleycars, "Do Not Speak to the Motorman." Not many weeks ago, the present writer rode 60 miles on a New England bus, NOT owned by the corporation employing the defendant in the Lowell case and NOT the property of any railroad company.

At the end of a 30-mile run, the first young driver was relieved by a second. The SAME GIRL, however, rode beside each and it would be difficult to say which gave her the most attention. It was NOT a pleasant journey, for some of the passengers.

If it is forbidden to speak to the MOTORMAN, whose car usually clings to the rails, why, under such highway conditions as exist today, is it permissible to gab to the driver of the motorbus, and for him to gab back?

A card of warning to be posted in the busses might help. How about: "No Pretty Girls Allowed in the Forward Seats."

Gas and Electricity Cheaper in Holyoke Than Anywhere Else in the United States

Gas and electricity for many years have been cheaper in Holyoke than in "any city of the United States east of Cleveland."

The progressive people of the Paper City have not liked the qualifying words, "east of Cleveland."

They are going to discard them, and that right away.

Beginning on Thursday of this week, the price of the first 100 kilowatt hours of electricity in Holyoke will be 6 cents per kilowatt hour, with a discount of 1 cent per kilowatt hour on bills paid within 10 days.

And GAS. Gas for heating purposes will be billed at 85 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, with a 10 per cent. discount on the same conditions. This is believed to be, in Holyoke, the lowest rate in this country.

Holyoke is the largest producer of fine writing paper and envelopes in the world, its 28 factories employing more than 5,000 persons. Some of these industrial plants, after this week, will be buying electricity at a price as low as 3½ cents per kilowatt hour, the lowest rate ever quoted. This price, applicable only when the customer has consumed 1,000 kilowatt hours, will help the manufacturer.

How is it done? Municipal ownership. The gas and electric plant at Holyoke BELONGS TO THE PEOPLE OF HOLYOKE, is the property of the City of Holyoke.

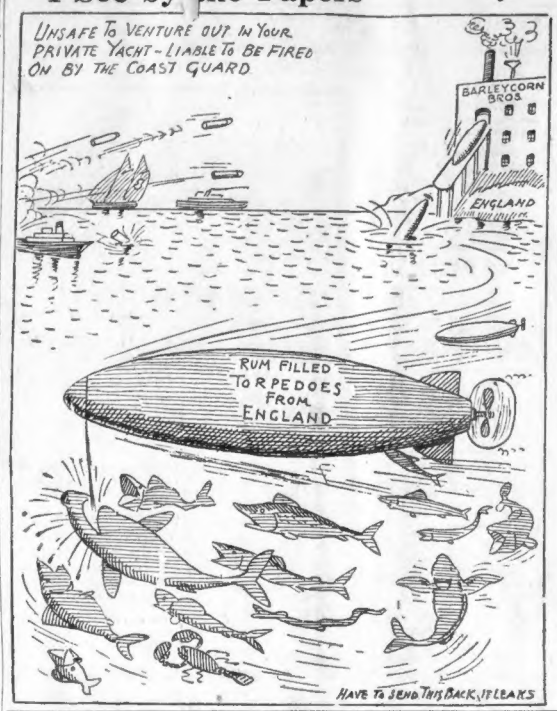

When the Municipal Gas and Electric Department was established the rate for electricity was 18 cents. As the years have gone along, one reduction has followed another.

Much depends upon the city government, of course, and upon local conditions. More, perhaps, depends upon the calibre of the men selected to run the department.

But IT CAN BE DONE and Holyoke proves it.

SOMETHING TO VOTE ABOUT NEEDED

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE White House Spokesman recently sounded a warning that in a democratic form of government a grave danger lies in the non-voting citizen.

Lethargy at election time is causing concern among civic bodies and both political parties are united in trying to get all citizens to vote.

A letter this writer received recently expresses the viewpoint of a large number of citizens who do not vote.

"For the most part democratic voting is a joke, a feather-in-the-hat make-believe," says the correspondent. "Most people have no definite information, and no possible sources of it, about either the man or the principle they are voting for. The whole is a cooked-up mess of propaganda for private interests. If nine-tenths of what one side says of the other is true, neither candidate is fit for office."

Most men who do not vote feel like this man, that there is nothing to vote for, that it is all cut and dried beforehand.

He said the political party pick, and tell him to vote for, a candidate who is often an obscure individual who commits himself as little as possible.

In the nominating conventions he sees men who are later nominated called tools and menaces to the nation. Then after they have been nominated he sees the very men who warned the nation that they were unfit for office supporting them and telling the citizens to elect them.

After a number of years of seeing "menaces to the nation" elected to high office and making as good executives as anyone else, he comes to the vague conclusion that one man is as good as another and as he has little way of finding the truth about who is qualified and who is not if he votes at all it is only going through a meaningless rite that flatters his vanity.

If the political parties really want more people to vote the way to do it is to give them something to vote about.

WHAT'S IN A NAME, WHEN IT COMES TO A JOB?

You are an exceptionally fine mechanic, but you don't like the sound of the term; you want to be something else.

You are an expert carpenter, but you want to be an architect.

You are an exceptionally fine cook, but you want to be managing housekeeper in a big establishment.

You are a writer of children's stories, but you want to be a cartoonist though you haven't the least skill along the lines. And so it goes.

First one and then another trying to be or longing to be the thing that does not suit his educational opportunities or personal attainments.

That is why there are so many second rates in every trade and profession—this idea of trying to be what you are not.

The only way to make an outstanding success in this world is to find out what is necessary to make the greatest success in the line that you follow. If you know there is one point you lack acquire it. Don't spend years as a second rater.

Find something, be it ever so humble, that you can do better than anyone else and stick to it.

A menial job well done is more commendable than higher work indifferently performed.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

"OH, why did he have to spoil my faith in him?" sobs B. L. A.

It's the old, old story of the Hero who wouldn't stay up on his pedestal. They had been married just about a year. Twelve months, but those months had been an eternity of blissful adoration on her part. Never, never had there been a man so good, so kind, so honest, so clean, so wise, so tender—so Pluribus Unum, as it were. He was her idol, her king, her god.

Then suddenly, as though a black tidal wave had swamped her life, all this happiness was blotted out by his confession. He hadn't meant to do wrong. It was only a silly flirtation with a mutual friend—a brittle, flashy woman whom B. L. A. had always disliked. She had never dreamed that he could take a woman like that seriously. He hadn't taken her seriously. But one night, during that week-end at camp—He'd been a fool. A perfectly rotten fool. But now he was going to do the square thing by his darling. He was going to make a clean breast of it. Then they'd both feel better. As he said it, he smiled and kissed her. It was quite obvious that he himself was vastly relieved.

But B. L. A. sat there dazed, with her world in ruins. Bad enough that he should have sinned, but, oh, the hideous cruelty of this confession. Why couldn't he have borne his burden of remorse alone.

"WHY SHOULD THE INNOCENT SUFFER JUST TO MAKE THE GUILTY ONE FEEL THAT HE HAS DONE A NOBLE THING IN CONFESSING?" she wails.

Love Is Undying

Which should give pause to a lot of impulsive sinners who wish to soothe their own pangs at the cost of some one else's peace of mind.

However, the harm has been done. He was down off his pedestal for keeps. He was no longer an idol, a king or a god. He was only a foolish, common man with rather silly tastes and a selfish absorption in his own comfort.

And now B. L. A. writes: "Yet I love him in spite of it. If I could only hate him and leave him. But I keep on smiling to hide a broken heart, trying not to become bitter, AND FIGHTING MY BEST TO PUT MY IDOL BACK ON HIS PEDESTAL AGAIN IN SPITE OF HIS BROKEN CLAY FEET."

Stop trying, little sister. Pedestals are a mistake. We humans don't belong on them. We either topple off from them, to harden into horrible, ossified lumps on top of them, like the dead-alive Indian fakirs. We're worth more to each other down in the mud, even though we are cracked and dented, than we're ever worth stuck up on the pedestal of a false illusion.

Your love is in agony now, but for all that it is a truer love, and your marriage is on a healthier basis than it was during that blissful year of fiere worship. I grant that he has done a vulgar, wicked thing in his flirtation with the other woman. And his confession seems to me both selfish and idiotic. Nevertheless, he can mean more to you now than he did before—if you will have the courage and wit to win through the crisis.

Feet of Clay

place on this humdrum sphere. Sooner or later that fancy was bound to be shattered. Sooner or later you were bound to discover those feet of clay.

Well, you've discovered them. And you think that proves that he is a monster. But he isn't a monster. He's just a foolish, impulsive, unreliable male with a warm heart and a weak head. You can't worship him any more, but you can love him as you never dreamed of loving him before, if you will. And you'll receive a love from him which is infinitely sweeter than the old fairy tale devotion. This new love will be based on his need of you and his deep and increasing respect for you. That's a better love than any gilded god could render.

That's the love you will find waiting if you'll dry your tears over your lost illusions, and turn with outstretched arms to the dear, erring reality.

That's the love we will find waiting when we are strong enough to put away our petty dreams of adoration and domination and embark on the greater adventure of service.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

WHAT we have had of joy will never leave us, however long the years; the sense of lack can not return to grieve us or bring regrets or tears. What we have known of Beauty's sort will linger with all the changeless past; the scribbled record left by Time's swift finger remains while life shall last. Be it a tender touch of classic singing heard who, waiting night, be it the touch of loved lips fondly clinging, for these, years hold no blight. All we have sought and clasped of loved and gladness is ours till time be done; all we have left of youth's ecstatic madness, all tranquil harbors won. Though many mourn the transiency of pleasure and all the shining train, in truth, all joy is an abiding treasure, all bliss is

Put Criminals to Work, Lawyer Urges

LOS ANGELES, June 30.—"Put criminals to work instead of sending them to prison" is the suggestion of William J. Variel, counsellor at law, who has written to William Randolph Hearst commending Mr. Hearst's recent booklet, "We Cannot Cure Murder by Murder." Mr. Variel's letter follows:

June 21, 1926.

"Honorable William Randolph Hearst,

"Dear Sir:

"I have just received your booklet, 'We Cannot Cure Murder by Murder,' and have read it several times with great interest, and I see that there is much food for thought in it. The State cannot legislate brains into parents or their children, nor can it at once neutralize the tendencies born in children toward crime that has come down through the blood of their ancestors; it is practically impossible to prevent the youth from associating with those who may have criminal tendencies; it is difficult to stop the truant from stealing away from school and engaging in something that the law does not permit, and I might go on ad infinitum detailing the things that the State can not easily do, but that would simply multiply the difficulties that confront the State in its efforts to have a well regulated body of people.

"The reform schools are as a rule schools where criminals receive their finishing touches; men who fill jails to overflowing at the present time are of the age of 25 years, the percentage probably would make the average age less than that; these they are in jail, doing nothing for themselves or any one else, idle, waiting to get out on probation or to serve a term in a prison or reform school.

"Do you know what I think should be done, and done at once in this country? I would put them all to work. HONEST WORK AND LABOR is the solution. How can it be brought about? Stop building jails and have a great farm, all inclosed so that those sent there know that they will have to stay there until such time as the State might feel that some sort of reformation had been brought about, and those fellows would have to work—work at farming, and in machine shops and as useful trades, farming and fruit raising being the chief occupation, and that they would be earning something all the time, so that when their time would be up, they would have some money in their pockets instead of being vagabonds and maybe their thoughts would be toward something other than the commission of crime. Road building, and all the useful operations incident to practical life would be available to them. But the genius of the whole enterprise would be WORK.

"Yours,
